Glover, Road Board Aide, Guilty of Fraud

Jury Convicts Him on All of 20 Charges

5-Year Sentence $10, 000 Fine on Each Count Possible.

J. G. (Bugs) Glover, former chief of state highway forces, was found guilty in United States district court yesterday on each charge in a 20-count indictment accusing him of using the mails in a scheme to defraud the state of approximately $10,000 during his tenure of office. The charges grew out of the building of state financed warden's houses at prison camps on land Glover owned.

Jurymen arrived at the verdict on the first ballot, less than 25 minutes after they had been locked in by court marshals.

Appeal Planned.

Sentence is not expected to be passed for another week or ten days when court probation officers will have completed the usual personal investigation of Glover. Maximum sentence under the statute is five years, and $10,000 fine on each count.

Defense will file an appeal against the jury's decision, attorneys Paul Carpenter and Roy Harris announced.

On being informed of the verdict, Attorney General Ellis Arnall said that the state would file suit against Glover this morning in the superior court of Richmond county for recovery of the funds he was convicted of mispending.

Until sentence is passed, Glover will remain free under the $2,500 bond he posted after the indictment was brought against him.

Charges Against Others.

The case was the first to be brought to trial of several preferred against various attaches and friends of the Rivers administration. Next on the calendar is the trial of John W. Green Jr., Rivers' legislative lieutenant, and Hiram W. Evans, former Imperial Wizard of the Ku Klux Klan, on charges of conspiring to monopolize the sale of emulsified asphalt to the state highway board.

Two other indictments are outstanding against Glover, one charging he pocketed transportation money paid misdemeanor prisoners on their release, the other charging he conspired with W. B. Brantley, chief engineer of the board, to furnish state labor and materials for highway contracts obtained by Brantley after he resigned his state job to enter the construction business.

Asphalt Case.

Another indictment against Evans and Green charges use of the mails to defraud in connection with asphalt sales. George W. Blount, state highway maintenance engineer, is also under federal indictment, charged with accepting commissions on sales of American Oil Company products to the board.

United States Attorney Lawrence S. Camp has reported that the remaining indictments against Glover have been placed at the heel of the court calendar, and that trials of other state job-holders probably will not come up before Christmas.

WELCOME SOUTH, JUDGE!—Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, high commissioner of baseball, showed none of his characteristic sternness as he landed in Atlanta yesterday for the minor league baseball convention, which officially opens today. The grizzled czar of the baseball world will address the gathering at the annual dinner tomorrow night, marking his first speech at a convention in eight years.

Crackers Swing Into Action, Trade Catcher for Shortstop

Dewey Williams Goes to Toronto in Exchange for Herman Clifton, Who Is Expected To Do Much Toward Bolstering Club's Defense.

By JACK TROY.

First of the Southern League clubs to swing into action, the Atlanta Crackers yesterday traded catcher Dewey Williams to Toronto for shortstop Herman (Flea) Clifton.

Mercer Board De-emphasizes Football Plans

New Program Adopted To Give Game 'Back to Students.'

MACON, Ga., Dec. 3.—(AP)—Mercer University trustees today revamped the college's athletic program by de-emphasizing inter-collegiate football, stressing physical education for the student body and setting the salary of the athletic director on the same level as that of college professors.

The new program also puts athletic scholarships under joint control of two faculty and trustee committees.

Other features of the plan are that the Mercer football team shall play only such games as subscribe to smaller college competition. The new setup provides that the expenses of the athletic department shall be included in the regular budget of the university.

"Object of the new plan is to give football back to the students, for it is not a sound business policy for a school the size and type of Mercer to make an effort to compete with schools in larger conferences," the official report said.

Reduced Railroad Fare
Offered Military Forces

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—(AP)—Reduced round trip fares for holiday travel by uniformed personnel of the Army, Navy, and Marine Corps have been announced by the Association of American Railroads.

Former a member of the Detroit and Toledo clubs, Clifton has been with the International League club for the past two seasons. He batted .261 in 1939 and last year boasted an average of .194.

The Crackers may have swung from one extreme to another. Last year Alf Anderson was a good hitter, no fielder. He batted .350 but had a very low fielding average.

Clifton, who is built along the order of Buster Chatham, is a very aggressive ball player and fine fielder. And, according to many baseball men, he is a much better hitter than his average for the past two seasons shows.

Manager Paul Richards said he was counting on Clifton replacing Anderson, who now is a member of the Pittsburgh Pirates. He is not expecting Clifton to supplant Anderson as a hitter but believes he will materially bolster the club's defense.

The Crackers are in the market for several ball players. Among other things, they need a few pitchers, a third baseman and perhaps another catcher now that peppy Dewey Williams has been traded off.

The great minor league convention, officially opening today, has attracted the large bulk of the nation's baseball magnates already.

Kenesaw Mountain Landis, high commissioner of baseball, arrived yesterday and will speak at the annual banquet Thursday night. Since the high commissioner rarely addresses a minor league gathering, something highly significant is expected.

Emory Youths Hurt as Train Strikes Auto

Claude D. Nelson Jr. in Critical Condition; Car Overturned.

Claude D. Nelson Jr., 23-year-old graduate student at Emory University and acting editor of the Emory Alumnus, was critically injured shortly after 10 o'clock last night when the automobile in which he was riding with his brother was struck by a Georgia Railroad freight train in Decatur.

He was admitted to Emory University hospital. He was unconscious, suffering severe bruises and lacerations and a possible fracture of the skull. His brother, James Nelson, 19, a junior at Emory, suffered bruises and lacerations and was also admitted to the hospital.

The accident occurred at 10:15 o'clock at the Candler street crossing where the tracks parallel College avenue, Decatur police said. The car was overturned by the force of the impact.

The train, Georgia Railroad No. 212, left Atlanta at 10 o'clock en route for Augusta, according to Dispatcher W. C. McGahee. McGahee listed the engineer as A. B. Bunn.

The two youths are the sons of the Rev. and Mrs. Claud Nelson, of 252 Winona drive, Decatur.

The elder youth, who is taking graduate work in journalism, is a former managing editor of the Emory Wheel, student weekly; president of the Emory Press Club; president of the Emory Non-Fraternity organization, and a Phi Beta Kappa.

He recently spent a year in Italy, where his father was secretary of the Y. M. C. A. in Rome.

Britain Won't Lose the War,
U.S. Aide Says

Early Fall Air Battles Decisive, Avers General J. E. Chaney.

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—Major General J. E. Chaney, commander of the Northeastern District of the United States Army Air Corps, told newsmen today that after a 43-day survey in England he was "very optimistic on the outcome of the war from the British point of view."

Describing the British Isles as "a fortress," he said "at the rate they are going, the British won't lose the war."

Asked whether he meant that the British would win the war, he replied, "That is another question."

In the most extended interview permitting direct quotation given by an American Air Corps officer returning from England, General Chaney asserted the military information the United States is gleaned from England on both British and German military establishments, "in money would be worth hundreds of millions of dollars."

"Decisive" Battle.

"I believe that in the air battle over England in August and September, historians will find material to record it as one of the decisive battles of the war, equally decisive as the eight to 12 battles from Marathon to Waterloo," he said.

He expressed the opinion, after spending 43 days in England, that Germany's initial daylight raids were not intended to destroy docks in England because the Germans planned to use the docks in an invasion attempt.

During that phase of the "battle of England," General Chaney placed the plane losses at six German to one British, culminating, he said, in Germany's loss of 180 planes on August 18 alone.

Airplane factories at Bristol, England, were slightly damaged early in the war, he said, but the plant turning out British "Hurricane" fighters has not been touched.

Thousands lined Miami streets to cheer as the President rode in an open automobile from his special train to the docks to be piped aboard the doughty 10,000-ton light cruiser.

Superior Engine.

He described the German airplane engine as "very superior" to the British and emphasized its fuel injection system which eliminates a carburetor and prevents "icing-up" in winter.

He indicated, however, that although Germany has a large air force, the nation's aviation is not as strong as has been reported.

"If Germany has all the planes she is supposed to have," he commented, "I can't understand why she doesn't forget about bombing and fight it out with pursuit planes."

He apportioned the air warfare into three phases after the fall of France. The first was from August 8 to 18, the second from September 5 to 15, and the third started on September 26.

First Phase.

In the first phase Germany's effort was directed, he said, at British shipping and airfields. German air losses mounted.

In the second phase the Germans used tremendous formations of bombers with pursuit escorts. That culminated in Germany's loss of 185 planes on September 15, with a 4-to-1 advantage favoring the British.

He described the third phase, still in progress, as consisting principally of night attacks because the Germans found they could not pierce British air defenses in daylight. He said losses now are 12 to 1 in favor of England.

Asked whether the American bombsights were effective at night, he replied enthusiastically, "They sure are; British sights also are effective at night," adding that the German sights were not.

Number One Draftee Calm in Excitement

BY HAROLD MARTIN.

If Georgia's No. One draftee moves as smoothly and calmly through his year of army life as he moved through all the fanfare and shindig they put him through yesterday, he ought to be a sergeant before the year is out.

Nothing bewildered him or confused him. He just looked and listened and grinned and said it was mighty nice. He thought the uniform tailored especially for him fitted fine and he looked at himself in the mirror admiringly and unashamed when he put it on.

Nothing bewildered him or confused him. He just looked and listened and grinned and said it was mighty nice. He thought the uniform tailored especially for him fitted fine and he looked at himself in the mirror admiringly and unashamed when he put it on.

"If the big general might not like it," he said, "let me get it off. I'd hate to get him down on me before I even started soldiering."

At the Governor's mansion the glittering array of silver didn't stump him any more than the glittering array of medals, ribbons and shoulder stars and bars of the assembled military men. He just went quietly ahead and fed himself.

"It was mighty good," he said.

F. D. R. Aboard Warship Heading for Caribbean

ABOARD U. S. S. MAYRANT, EN ROUTE TO CARIBBEAN, Dec. 3.—(AP)—President Roosevelt shoved off from Miami aboard the cruiser Tuscaloosa today and headed for the Caribbean sea, indicating that he himself had only a general idea of where he will go.

He parried questions about whether he will inspect air and naval sites acquired from England or watch exercises of Atlantic patrol units and marines at Culebra island, near Puerto Rico.

Thousands lined Miami streets to cheer as the President rode in an open automobile from his special train to the docks to be piped aboard the doughty 10,000-ton light cruiser.

Robert Certain Avila Camacho Friend of U. S.

Ex-Democratic Committee Secretary Returns From Mexico.

L. W. (Chip) Robert Jr., of Atlanta, former secretary of the National Democratic Executive Committee, yesterday came back from the inauguration of Mexico's new president, General Manuel Avila Camacho, with the conviction that he will be a warm friend to American diplomats and businessmen.

The new president received Mr. and Mrs. Robert ahead of a group of diplomats in order that they might catch the plane for Atlanta. Robert said he met numerous businessmen from the United States in Mexico City conferring with responsible business and political leaders of that country, and expressed the opinion there would be a boom in the Mexican tourist business under the new administration.

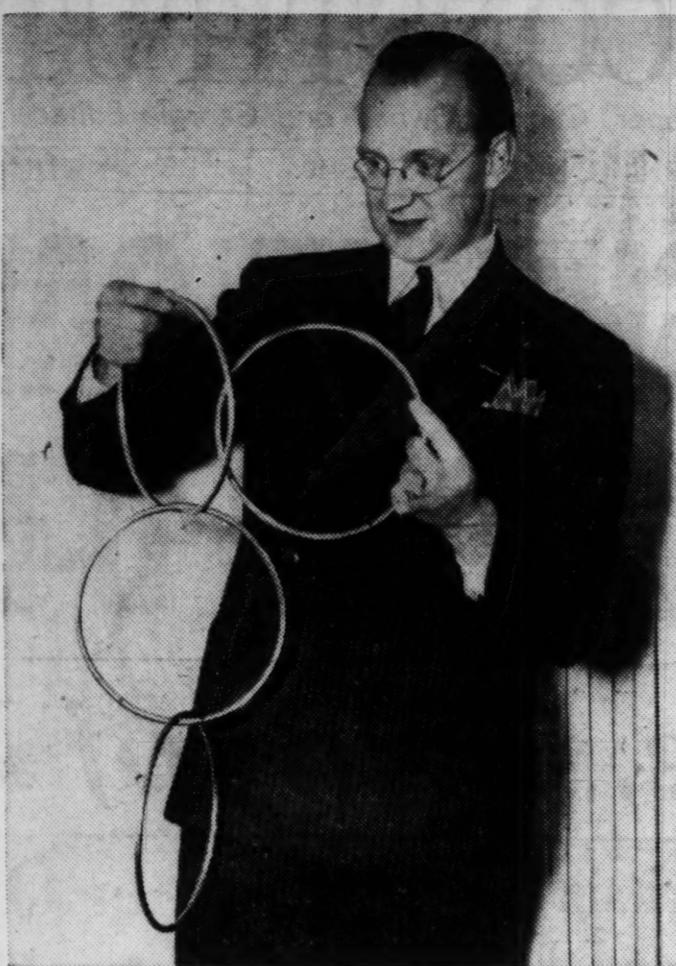

He said Vice President-elect Henry A. Wallace was generally well-received in Mexico and indicated he did not think it was a mistake for the United States to send him to the inauguration.

Robert estimated that the amount of construction going on in the metropolitan area of Mexico City was greater than in any city in the United States.

Bomb Fails To Explode As Glass Severs Fuse

EAST CHICAGO, Ind., Dec. 3.—(P)—A bomb, hurled at the home of Councilman Alex Dragus failed to explode, police said, because a piece of the shattered glass cut off the fuse.

Dragus has been campaigning against gambling.

Rev. Broyles South To Get Will Be North More Seats Avenue Pastor In Congress

Presbyterian Minister To Assume Duties in January.

The Rev. Vernon S. Broyles, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Canton, Miss., has accepted a call to be pastor of the North Avenue Presbyterian church of Atlanta, and will assume the duties of Dr. Richard Orme Flinn, who resigned in July, 1939, after 40 years' service at the church.

Dr. Broyles will begin his pastorate here on January 1, 1941. The invitation was issued by the congregation, following a meeting Sunday, through Dr. Stuart R. Oglesby, chairman of the committee on The Minister and His Work of the Presbytery.

A graduate of Davidson College, Dr. Broyles attended the Union Theological Seminary in Richmond, Va. He is a native of Mississippi. He is especially qualified in work among young people and has also studied in Europe.

Dr. J. Ernest Thacker has been the supply pastor of the church, and will continue until Dr. Broyles arrives to fill the post on a permanent basis.

The present reapportionment law works automatically. Unless congress enacts legislation to the contrary, the revision will take effect technically in March, but probably not until the new congress is elected in 1942. The law keeps the total house membership at 435. Under the formula the total population of the country (less the District of Columbia) would be divided and the resulting figure is the controlling factor in the reapportionment.

This year it is 301,163. Each state would have one house seat for each 301,163 of its population, and a seat additional if the fractional remainder were more than half of 301,163. The formula is called the "major fractions" method.

Representative Rankin, Democrat, Mississippi, has long urged a somewhat different procedure known as the "equal proportions" formula, which he said today he would press for adoption before the reapportionment becomes effective. He declined to go into details on it, saying that it was technically and mathematically intricate. But, he added, that its effect was to protect the representation of the smaller states, and as applied to the 1940 figures the only difference would be that Arkansas would not lose a seat and Michigan would not gain one.

Women Injured In Auto-Bus Crash

Mrs. W. L. Ballenger, wife of an Atlanta physician, and her companion, Mrs. Gordon Blankenship, of 2878 North Hill drive, suffered bruises and lacerations yesterday in a collision between a bus and the Ballenger car at Boulevard and Ponce de Leon avenue, Radio Patrolmen T. J. Avery and H. H. Crankshaw reported.

The officers reported Mrs. Ballenger was proceeding inbound on Boulevard when her car struck the bus a glancing blow, the car careening against the wall of a church at the intersection. No bus passengers were injured and the vehicle was slightly damaged.

The injured women were taken to Georgia Baptist hospital. R. E. Lawson was listed as bus driver.

Magician Can't Afford To Play Card Games

Would Lose Caste If He Lost, Friends If He Won.

One of America's foremost "hocus-pocus" men was in Atlanta yesterday making chains out of steel links, and then unlinking them, showing his amazing memory feats, and roundly denouncing as frauds all the folks who offer prophecy, magic, or spiritual manifestation as anything but deception.

H. Adrian Smith, president of the Society of American Magicians, who doesn't play cards because he would lose caste as a magician if he lost, and would lose caste as a gentleman if he won, is a former electrical engineer, and a magician and magic book collector.

He is en route to Miami and stopped over here to meet with the Atlanta assembly of the S. A. M., to try to teach Fellow Magician Julian Bane his famous Chinese rings trick, and to visit with Homer Hulse, head of the Atlanta assembly.

Among his rare collection of magic books, he has nearly 6,000 in his library in Riverside, R. I., is "Hocus-Pocus Junior—the Anatomy of Legerdemain," published in 1835. The late Harry Houdini, who once owned the book, wrote on the fly-leaf that he had acquired it for three pounds, although it sold for four pounds four shillings. Another is "Scot's Discovery of Witchcraft," published in 1584 and banned by King James I as heresy.

The 32-year-old maker of magic is worried about the draft and expects to be called soon. But, even the army, he says, likes magic, if it's the kind that admits it's deception. "Folks like to be fooled, if the magician is honest enough to say he is a deceiver," he said.

Wounded Officer's Condition Is 'Fair'

Patrolman J. L. Carney, who was shot and wounded Saturday night following the holdup of a West Peachtree street liquor store, was reported in "fair" condition yesterday at Georgia Baptist hospital as Detectives J. E. Helms and H. E. Burdett disclosed the arrest of a second suspect in the case.

The new suspect was listed as Lewis Mitchell, 33, a cousin of John Smith, who was shot and wounded by police after Carney was shot.

Charges against the suspect will await outcome of the officer's injuries, Helms added. The detectives also said Mitchell, a chauffeur, told them he borrowed a 32-caliber revolver from another chauffeur.

Hartsfield To Call '40 Budget Group

Mayor Hartsfield will summon the 1940 budget commission today or tomorrow, he said yesterday after a preliminary conference with B. Graham West, city controller. The entire commission will be called into session to map a policy for forming the recommendations for the 1941 commission, it developed.

Hartsfield wants full anticipations carried in the new recommendations. It was decided that the matter should be decided by the entire commission, composed of Councilmen Cecil Hester and Frank Wilson, council representatives, Alderman Ed A. Gilliam, finance committee chairman, and Hartsfield and West.

Eight 'Optimists' Speak on Program

Eight men who became members of the Atlanta Optimist Club during the past year were speakers on the variety program yesterday which was presented in observance of National Optimist Week.

Definitions were read, which were obtained by members of the club who ask persons on the street: "What is an optimist?" Winners of the definition contest will be announced at the next weekly meeting.

A special feature of the meeting was the recording of all the speeches, and the records will be sent to other Optimist clubs in this district.

M. E. Coleman presided and Morgan Blake introduced the visitors. Speakers included Captain Robert Bott, Lee Green, Roddy Clements, Louie P. Lathem, W. H. Goulder, Richard M. Lamar, John Whately and Sherman Weeks.

Meeting Planned For Cotton Men

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 3.—(UP)

The American Cotton Shippers' Association tonight planned a meeting of cotton growers and manufacturers for a discussion of problems affecting the south's welfare.

Disclosing that association officials had held a long meeting on world conditions Monday affecting cotton, the organization said it had been decided that a "hope of arriving at some solution of vital problems could best be realized by a meeting of the various groups of the cotton trade."

Four association members will confer with Department of Agriculture officials and interested groups at Washington.

Dr. Claudius Murchison, president of the Textile Institute of America, members of the Commodity Credit Corporation and others appeared before yesterday's meeting.

1,527,000 Cut From Jobless Rolls Foreseen

Defense Contracts To Require 4,000,000 Workers by June.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—(P)—Production for national defense will result directly in the employment of an additional 1,527,000 workers by June, 1941, the National Industrial Conference Board forecast today on the basis of orders awarded up to November 1 this year.

A total of approximately 4,000,000 persons will be working on defense orders next June, the board said, of which 2,449,000 will be engaged indirectly.

At the same time, the board estimated unemployment in all industries dropped to 6,653,000 persons in October, or 45,000 fewer than in September. From August to September unemployment declined 900,000.

The board said October employment amounted to 48,638,000 workers, the highest yet reached except for a few months in 1929. Since 1929, however, approximately 7,000,000 persons have been added to the labor supply, or close to the number who are still unemployed.

Only major employment decrease from September to October occurred in agriculture, which declined by 353,000 workers, or somewhat less than the usual seasonal drop.

VANDERBILT ROMANCE ENDS—Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt (left), 28-year-old president of the Pimlico and Belmont Racing Associations, said through a spokesman yesterday he and his wife, the former Manuela Hudson (right), had "separated by mutual agreement." They were married in June, 1938.

Romance Born At Race Tracks Ends on Rocks

Vanderbilt, Millionaire Sportsman, and Wife Agree To Separate.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—(P)—The romance of young Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt and his auburn-haired wife, the former Manuela Hudson, has ended in a separation of mutual agreement, 2 1/2 years after it began on the sidelines of race tracks where his career and white racing silks fluttered.

"It is true—beyond that I have nothing to say," Vanderbilt, one of the nation's wealthiest young men, said today through a spokesman at his hotel suite several blocks from the Park Avenue tower hotel suite where his wife is staying.

The rift in the marriage of the boyish-looking millionaire who, at 28, is president of the Pimlico and Belmont Racing Associations, and the 26-year-old girl who shares his enthusiasm for racing, follows by seven months the collapse of another romance of the turf world—"Liz" Whitney's marriage to John Hay "Jock" Whitney, amateur steeplechase rider. This ended in a Nevada divorce.

Vanderbilt, whose wealth has been estimated at between $20,000,000 and $30,000,000, is a great-grandson of Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt who founded the family fortune; a grandson of the present Cornelius, and son of the late Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, who died when the Lusitania sank in 1915.

Young Alfred's wife is the daughter of George Hudson, attorney and former mayor of Monterey, Cal.

Charges Reds Teach Youths To Beat Scouts

Brooklyn Probers Hear Witness Tell of Communism's Spread.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—(P)—A story of how a New York grammar school child is taught to be a Communist—by beating up Boy Scouts and regarding teachers and policemen as enemies—was told today by Brooklyn zoologist to a joint legislative committee investigating subversive movements in the city's school system.

Ralph de Sola, the witness, testified he joined the Communist party and was assigned to the "children's movement"—the Communist "training school" for children from 6 to 14.

"They were taught the 'Soviet slant' on life," he testified. "They were taught their only friends were the defenders of the Soviet system, and their enemies teach-

Tacoma Bridge Insurance Fee Is Said Stolen

Agent Arrested; Failed To Report Policies to Company.

SEATTLE, Dec. 3.—(P)—Hallett R. French, a prominent insurance and clubman, was arrested today on a complaint charging that he embezzled $1,217.88 in premiums paid to him for insurance on the Tacoma Narrows bridge, which collapsed recently.

Chief Deputy Prosecutor Charles C. Ralls, who filed grand larceny charges in superior court, said French was accused of taking about $70,000 from the Merchants' Fire Assurance Corporation of New York during the past several years. He said that French wrote $800,000 in policies on the bridge, retained the premiums paid him by the state and failed to report the policies to his company.

As a result, Ralls said, the company had no opportunity for the customary redistribution of some of the amount among other insurance firms and hence was liable for the entire sum.

State officials asserted the state was fully protected as to the Narrows bridge, as French was the company's general agent here and commitments he made were binding. The company has assets of about $17,500,000.

COMPANY TO PAY OFF ON BRIDGE POLICY

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—(P)—Walter F. Brady, vice president and secretary of the Merchants' Fire Assurance Company of New York, said today that his company learned on November 9 that it had issued a policy for $800,000 on the $5,000,000 Tacoma bridge, which collapsed two days earlier.

"Of course, we shall honor the policy and pay off on it," Brady said. "We will do this despite the fact that, as a conservative company, it is not our custom to handle such sizable policies. We would not have taken this policy had it been submitted in advance."

ers, policemen and others who did not believe as they did.

Part of this program he added, consisted of waylaying and beating Boy Scouts, although frequently the tables were turned and "other kids would sock them and beat them up."

De Sola in his testimony also said Morris U. Schappes, history instructor at the College of the City of New York; and Mrs. Elizabeth Deward and Miss Yetta Feigenbaum, Brooklyn public school teachers, were members of the Communist party.

ARRESTED—Hallett French, prominent clubman and insurance man, was arrested in Seattle, Wash., yesterday on a charge of embezzling premiums on insurance he wrote on the ill-fated Tacoma Narrows bridge. The bridge collapsed last month.

U.S. Support Of Dies Grows, Gallup Finds

Congressional Appropriation for Another Year Is Favored.

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP, Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 3.—

With national discussion being stirred by the activities of the Dies committee, a public opinion study just completed by the Institute shows an increase in the number of voters who want the Dies investigations to continue.

The vote does not mean that the public approves everything the committee has done. The general attitude of the majority is that the Dies group has "revealed important facts the country should know."

A congressional appropriation for another year is favored by a substantial majority of those polled.

Most of the interviewing in the study was completed before President Roosevelt's letter to Congressman Martin Dies last week criticizing certain phases of the committee's activities. The survey put the following question to a cross-section of voters throughout the nation:

"Do you think the Dies committee should be continued?"

The latest results, compared with the results on a closely similar question in December, 1939, show the following trend:

Year Ago	Committee should continue	65%	54%
	Committee should not continue	7	18
	No opinion or never heard of committee	28	28

Chairman Dies is asking for a congressional appropriation of $1,000,000 to continue his work for another year. The question whether congress should grant him this sum was put to the voters in a second question in the Institute survey.

A sizable majority favor such an appropriation. The vote is 57 per cent in favor, 11 per cent against, and 32 per cent undecided.

Major Howell And Nix Lead Elector Vote

Nominees for Naming President Were From State at Large.

Major Clark Howell, editor and publisher of The Constitution, and Abit Nix, of Athens, led in the number of votes polled by Georgia's 12 presidential electors who were named in the November 5 general election, according to figures compiled yesterday by Stiles Martin, statistician for the State Department of Agriculture.

Both Major Howell and Nix were nominees from the state-at-large. Major Howell received the top vote with 265,194 and Abit Nix received 265,170.

The other Democratic electors and their votes follow:

John J. Bounan, first district, 264,001; Henry McIntosh, second, 264,007; Columbus Roberts, third, 264,040; Quimby Melton, fourth, 263,000; Ivan Allen Sr., fifth, 264,023; R. Earl Camp, sixth, 264,009; N. A. Norris, seventh, 264,172; O. E. Raynor, eighth, 264,004; Mrs. Fred Hayes, ninth, 264,072, and John C. Evans, tenth, 264,002.

The highest number of votes for any Republican elector was 23,934 for Robert L. Anderson, nominee from the state-at-large.

November Cost Of U.S. Defense Tops '16 Total

$365,233,578 Cash Outlay Reported by the Treasury.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—(P)—The United States spent more on its defenses last month than it expended during the entire year before entering the World War. The Treasury said military activities of the War and Navy Departments cost $365,233,578 in cash during November, not counting any contracts or other obligations incurred for future payment. This compared with $337,030,000 in the year 1916.

Reflecting the steady speed-up of defense program, November military spending was more than double the costs of July, the first month of the fiscal year.

What Record Shows.

Here is what the books show: July, $177,391,781; August, $199,251,126; September, $218,433,462; October, $283,855,963; November, $365,233,578.

However, if the government spends $5,000,000 in cash this fiscal year, as budgeted, the monthly rate will have to be nearly doubled again.

Defense spending for the first five months of the fiscal year totaled $1,243,864,933, and easily was the largest item in the $3,987,395,366 paid out by the Treasury for all purposes during that period.

Deficit Larger.

With last summer's new defense taxes only partially offset as far as the cash drawer was concerned, revenues lagged with a total of $2,184,337,288. Thus, the deficit of $1,803,058,138 was larger than the defense spending total. Some administration leaders recently have urged balancing the budget for all "normal expenses."

Of the deficit, the Treasury borrowed $1,305,245,287, boosting its debt to a record high of $44,272,776,324. Cash already on hand was used to pay the rest of the deficit, but Secretary Morgenthau said cash was running so low—about $1,000,000,000—that he was considering borrowing a large sum through the sale of securities on December 15.

Morgenthau will meet tomorrow with Federal Reserve officials to discuss the proposal.

U. S. Officials Survey British War Finances

Loans to England Not Brought Up, Says High Source.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—(P)—The whole question of British financial resources and ability to buy war materials in this country was reported authoritatively to have been the cause and chief topic of a meeting today of nine of the most important officials in the government.

According to this source, it was not a meeting to decide whether the United States should lend money to Great Britain, but more to take an accounting of the situation resulting from British contracts, now aggregating more than $2,500,000,000 and expected to rise to $4,000,000,000 in the next year.

It was, he indicated, the aftermath of the controversy stirred up by the recent statement of Lord Lothian, British ambassador, that Britain was running out of the means of buying American products and needed financial as well as material aid.

The only certain thing about today's meeting was the attendance, which alone was significant because nearly every time a similar gathering of so many high officials has occurred in recent months, some important step in the "aid-to-Britain" policy has been announced very soon afterwards.

"These people don't get together to talk about peanuts," is the way one conferee put it, referring to the following who were closeted in the Treasury:

Henry Morgenthau Jr., secretary of the Treasury; Henry L. Stimson, secretary of war; Frank Knox, secretary of the Navy; Jesse H. Jones, secretary of commerce and Federal Loan administrator; Sumner Welles, undersecretary of state; James V. Forrestal, undersecretary of the Navy; General George C. Marshall, chief of staff of the Army; William S. Knudsen, production member of the national defense commission; Robert P. Patterson, assistant secretary of war, and Herbert Feis, economic advisor of the State Department.

SINGIN' AND A RIDIN'—"Dear Old Sylvan Hills," the song of the south Atlanta school, ran through one coach as the special train of eight cars sped 426 children to Fort Benning yesterday on a new form of educational tour—one for pre-teen age kids.

State Workers Speculate on See Sights at 'Ax Swinging' Fort Benning

By CAROLYN MCKENZIE.

State capitol statisticians were a bit in the fog yesterday over how many state employees Governor-elect Talmadge meant when he said he was going to "fire more than a passenger train can haul away."

They were agreed he would have to have several passenger trains if he insisted on swinging the ax as drastically as some Talmadge leaders have predicted. There have been reports he would trim the payroll to the level he left it when he went out of office, which would necessitate the elimination of approximately 3,000 employees.

Railway officials revealed that the average passenger train operating out of Atlanta will accommodate between 500 and 600 persons. The mathematicians reason, therefore, that the Governor-elect either would have to line up several trains or else put on so many coaches that he would need a series of locomotives to pull it.

Real School Days.

I'd forgotten the high pitch, the tall tales, the motley faces, and the unsatisfactory appetites of these tots; but being with them for a few minutes meant a lashing back to some years ago to recapture the interest in chumming around with the teacher—as her pet—eating apples, chewing candy, orange slices, and keeping the coach aisles hot to and from the water cooler.

This 11-hour trip began at 8 o'clock yesterday morning. Some of us boarded the train at Terminal Station. Then we picked up the remaining cars in the eight-coach special at Peters street. The thought of education through travel began several years ago.

Now, through the ideas of Miss Annie Johnson, principal of the Peters Street school, the children's trips have expanded from few mile jaunts into all-day excursions. Moreland, Sylvan Hills, Connally, Stanton, and Joe Brown schools joined the group of this year to make the trip virtually a school kids' special.

Start Eating Early.

We weren't in East Point before the children began pulling out the lunches which mamas had packed for them. Then the school boy patrolmen marched up and down the aisles barking "ham, egg salad and peanut butter sandwiches," or "cold drinks," or "candy, cookies and fruit." All together the party consumed some 1,500 sandwiches, 1,000 drinks and unknown quantities of home-packed goodies.

Peters Street had a baggage car all set up for the food concessions. There the teachers dished out baskets of food and drinks just as get into a fighter squadron and

TRY THIS ONE—These little girls agree that the helmets of Uncle Sam's tank corps are tricky affairs. "They feel so funny," the small voices said. They are: Juanita Fowler, Jane Spier, Barbara Ann Freeman and Thelma Whitaker. They get used to "funny hats" early.

EXHAUSTED—Little Bobbie Farr was one of the few members of the tour who couldn't take it after so long. He curled up on a coach seat and took a cat-nap before he got back to Atlanta—or maybe it wasn't a cat-nap because he didn't wake until the flash bulb went off in his face and brought him to with a start.

Dixie Firms Hit Minimum Pay Rate Proposal

Would Prove Undoing of Many Southern Mills, Brief Charges.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—(UP)

Motorcycle cops met the crowd in Columbus about noon and loaded the children on buses to ride out to Fort Benning. They anticipated the stampede which would come from a close inspection of the artillery, or the men; so the drivers didn't want to let us off even for picture. About halfway around on the 45-mile ride we talked the leader of the buses into stopping for a look at the cannons.

Then we couldn't get a picture because the guns were too far hidden by the children. Later in the afternoon, before the sight-seeing tour was completed, we sneaked out about 10 of them and shot into a tank shop for a few photographs.

The children hung out of windows, waved to the soldiers, and screamed out exciting comments each time the wheels turned over. Some few of the boys had tales to swap about their brothers in Uncle Sam's service—and a very few ventured remarks about the time when they'd be in the Army. But the major interest was in the magnitude of the reservation, the equipment, and especially the bombing planes.

Learned a Lot.

A more interested—or interesting—group of children couldn't be rounded up than the one which went on this trip. Each one was chock full of conversation and fun-making. No one, not even the kindergarten members, got homesick and many hadn't ridden a train before. Only a few of them gave out of energy before they reached Atlanta; but some curled up on a coach seat for a short nap.

These Atlanta school children have something to talk about for weeks to come. They forgot all about Santa Claus and their books; but they learned a lot on this trip.

anything. Then I asked, "Does your wife mind your being on operational flying?"

"We talked about that when the war started and she understands. A bloody fine little girl, plucky, too. I say, do you mind if we talk about something else, and I think I'll have a brandy. Waiter, a couple of more brandies, please."

"Aren't there a few fellows who are carefree and expert navigators or the bomber type. But sometimes you get hold of a bloke who is wild and quick with his muscles and does not care a damn for anything or anybody, I suppose, and they send him to the fighters when he is trained. They take a chance of his cracking up an expensive bomber and maybe killing the rest of the crew as well as himself. If he is crazy like that, they send him over to us, as he is the fighter type. We are all a little crazy in the fighters, you know."

"I am sure you are not," I said. "You got to be crazy in the fighters," he insisted.

"But don't they sometimes make mistakes and send down the wrong type?"

"Every now and then," he said, "and when they do it is my job. As commanding officer of the field, I have got to watch the chaps who are going to crack up and get them transferred into bombers or maybe the coastal command before it happens. I always watch the chaps who are getting toward 30, or the coves who get married, particularly if they learn there is a baby on the way. It makes them think in the air. It slows them down and Jerry is sure to get them. When a chap starts thinking it is my job to watch for signs and get him moved before he cracks up."

"Are there signs?" I asked.

"Plenty of signs. From the way they act in mess and particularly the way they act in the air, it is easy to tell when a chap starts thinking."

Glover Case First on Trial In U. S. Probe

Heroine of Prosecution Was Former Secretary of Defendant.

First of the government's cases to come to trial since the federal investigation of state government agencies began early this year was successfully concluded yesterday when a jury in United States district court found J. G. (Bugs) Glover guilty on a 20-count indictment charging use of the mails in a scheme to defraud in connection with the construction of three state-financed houses on land he owned while serving as chief of state highway forces.

Finding the defendant guilty on the first ballot, the jury's swift action overrode testimony by Highway Board Members L. L. Patten and Herman Watson that Glover's actions were in thorough accord with the board's policy.

It also negated a letter allegedly dictated by Glover last December 15 to Highway Department heads stating that it was the board's policy to remove prison camp buildings and wardens' houses when camp sites were abandoned, a point which the defense made heavy use of throughout the month-long trial.

Heroine of the prosecution conducted by United States Attorney Lawrence S. Clegg was Miss Virginia Brannon, Glover's ex-secretary. She denied writing or filing the letter though it bore her initials. She also remembered that December 15 was a holiday and she was not at the office.

The three houses Glover had built were in Miller, Dade and Dawson counties. The Miller house came in for little attention from the government. The house at Dawsonville with its copper-screened windows and sleeping porch, its masonry foundation walls and concreted basement garage, and the Dade county house on Lookout Mountain near a new state park were the government's exhibits A and B.

Direction taken by testimony at times led dangerously close to the Lookout Mountain hotel, which has several behind-the-scenes political figures on its directing board, and at other times led down new highways that run through valuable tracts of land reportedly owned by familiar state capital figures.

Attempting to inject a political issue by Defense Attorney Roy Harris as he made his final speech to the jury yesterday was quelled by Federal Judge E. Marvin Underwood.

"Deep down behind this somewhere there is something that shouldn't be," Harris said after describing the government's case as "flimsy" charges supported by "flimsy" evidence.

"Politics should not enter into this case," he continued. "Whether you like the highway board or not, they are not on trial."

Glover dropped the subject after the judge reminded him that until then his political had not entered into the case.

Harris said the case was "very peculiar." The government countered by agreeing that it was "extraordinary."

There was no deception on Glover's part, Harris continued, recalling the testimony of board members Patten and Watson, and the fact that state courts had done nothing about it.

Declaring the state had proved no fraud but would attempt to prove the intention of fraud, Harris asked the jury "How can you CONVICTED—J. G. (Bugs) Glover, former chief of state highway forces, yesterday was found guilty on a 20-count federal indictment charging use of the mails to defraud.

look in a man's heart and tell what he intended to do?"

In the last speech for the prosecution, Camp asked if the jury was to believe that Glover was giving houses to the state like Carnegie gave libraries and Rockefellers gave schools?

In a lengthy charge to the jurors, Judge Underwood instructed them that proof that the highway board could remove the three houses from Glover's land did not necessarily mean acquittal for the defendant.

Describing the evidence in the case as circumstantial, he told them they must find evidence of a scheme to defraud as substantially set out in the indictments; the intention and purpose of the scheme, as well as use of the mails to further the scheme.

Concluding his charge, he gave the jury a recess for lunch before it began deliberations. Returning to the federal building, the jurors were closed together for less than 10 minutes before it was announced an agreement had been reached.

The verdict was read by Deputy Clerk Fred L. Beers Jr., and signed by Larkin H. Parrish, foreman.

Glover, who had shifted nervously when on the witness stand, once announcing that he was sick and uncomfortable, took the news impassively. His wife, who had attended every session, was not there when the verdict was brought in, and in accordance with his usual custom, neither was Lawrence Camp.

Gist of the defense's position was that there had been no fraud as the state has title to the houses built and can move them when it wishes.

Glover's unsuccessful attempt to deed the houses to the board after postal inspectors had begun their investigation was used as successfully by the prosecution as the defense.

The government charged that it is the board's practice to build on land leased for that purpose, leaving the buildings behind as part payment for use of the land less there is a written agreement to the contrary.

Christmas Giving Urged by Dr. Few

Speaking before the Business People's Forum of the Epiphany Episcopal church last night, Dr. E. C. Few, chairman of the Christmas committee of the Social Planning Council, urged the application of the golden rule in giving to the needy at Christmas time. "Try to put yourself in the other person's shoes," Dr. Few suggested, "and ask yourself, 'Is this the way I would like to be helped were I on the receiving end of the line?'"

"Often," Dr. Few said, "we give in order to get personal satisfaction for ourselves rather than to give joy to the recipient. Let's sacrifice a little more of our own pleasure in order to make Christmas as happy as possible for those folks who are not fortunate enough to provide for their own families."

"I didn't think I could afford a Philco Radio"

...SAID A CUSTOMER AT RICH'S

"The children all needed new winter clothes, the rug in the living room simply had to be replaced, the wife wanted a fur coat, and I had to buy four new tires for the car . . . all this month. On top of that . . . the family decided they wanted one of those new Philco radio-phonographs for Christmas. Now I hated the thought of disappointing them about the radio for Christmas . . . but I knew the budget simply wouldn't carry it this month. I had just about decided I couldn't afford it, when my neighbor came to my rescue. He said I could not only get the particular Philco model I wanted at Rich's (because they had all the new models), but I could pay for it next year on the easiest of terms. And it WAS just as easy as that! No fuss, no red tape. Just a short chat with Rich's Credit Manager and the family will have the Philco they want for Christmas! Best of all, I won't even miss the small monthly payments next year! More than that, Rich's gave me a swell trade-in allowance for my old radio."

We might add, Mr. Customer, that in addition to Rich's easy terms, and liberal trade-in allowance, you get a double guarantee backed by Philco and by Rich's. And, if you ever need service, you can bank on it being done quickly and efficiently by one of Rich's great staff of specialists. Our Service Department, you know, is the largest in the city.

Let's Not Fail Them

Yesterday Clyde Odell Brown, 25-year-old farm boy of Heard county, was feted and honored as the first draftee, under the new selective military service law, from the eight states of the Fourth Corps Area. Soon many other southern boys will be going to the receiving camps, to join their fellows who have,
in recent months, volunteered for military training and military service for Uncle Sam.

Nearly all these boys are going to a new experience with their spirits filled with that glorious idealism which belongs in such a special way to youth. They are going because their nation needs them, because they have a duty to fulfill to the land which gave them all the privileges and advantages of individual freedom, of untrammelled opportunity in life.

They are going, gladly and willingly, because it is the privilege of every man worthy the name to offer himself for his country's sake. They are going so that, if need should later arise, they will be prepared and trained, ready to defend the soil of their country, their state, their home, from the polluting feet of the invader.

It is the sacred duty of those who direct the affairs of the nation, of the older men, to see that we do not fail these young men with their chins held high, spring in their step and faith within their hearts. It is the duty of the nation to make sure that they shall receive the full training they seek; that they shall find, as they learn more and more about their country, that it is indeed worth any sacrifice and that the nation never lacks in giving honor to those who have answered the call with the prompt, glad words, "I am ready."

It is, above all, the duty of the nation to never call these young men into the filthy horror named war, except only for a cause for which honorable men may fight, for which brave men and patriots may gladly lay down their lives.

The young men are marching, today. Let us who stay at home not break the faith.

Thieves in the Far West steal a truck carrying frozen eggs, bananas, lettuce and clothes.
Evidently the beginning of a salad.

Puncturing Fantasy

Thirty-two Protestant clergymen and educators have publicly gone on record, in a prepared statement, as opposing the Herbert Hoover proposal to send food shipments to Europe this winter, despite the British blockade.

In their statement, the thirty-two declare that the assertion, attributed to Hoover, that 50,000,000 people would die in Europe this winter unless food is sent, is gross exaggeration.

They know, the 32 declare, of no responsible estimate that places the possible deaths at anything more than a small fraction of this figure.

They are undoubtedly right in their attitude. The claim that 50,000,000 would starve to death, in a single winter, is too exaggerated to be anything but fantasy. Use of this figure by Herbert Hoover, or by anyone advocating food relief for Europe, defeats its own ends in revealing the tendency to gross overstate-ment. And such overstatement, in turn, arouses suspicions as to the hidden motives behind advocates of the proposal.

The truth is, of course, that there is already great shortage of food in Europe. They have rationed even spaghetti in Italy. But it is the blockade which keeps essentials out of those lands under control of the Axis, that offers Britain's best chance of winning the war.

And if Britain doesn't win, there will be suffering, not alone in Europe but, before many years have passed, in America too.

Science's work is never done. Hollywood can photograph the whole gamut of color and tints direct, but has to paint in the ingenue's blush by hand.

For his latest book, the anthropologist,
Hooton, selects the title, "Why Men Behave

Like Apes and Vice Versa." Only rarely have two great families been insulted as evenly.

Reclaiming "Lost County"

Residents of northwest Georgia and especially those of the "Lost County of Dade," will rejoice today because a region hitherto almost inaccessible to modern traffic has been provided with three fine new highways. The "Lost county" will officially be welcomed back into Georgia.

At Slaton's Gulch, a magnificent canyon sunk deep into a side of Lookout mountain, bronze plaques will be unveiled today to designate the new road as the E. D. Rivers highway, named, of course, in honor of the Governor under whose administration it was built. The point overlooking Slaton's Gulch, it might be added, has been acquired by the state as a part of its park system.

Citizens of Rome and La Fayette and Summerville and Trenton and the surrounding country will join in the dedicatory ceremonies, with a motorcade from Rome as a feature.
John W. Graham, Rome banker and for many years a strong figure in bringing about agricultural progress, will speak in behalf of his region. There will be much oratory and a grand get-together.

The Lookout mountain highway system has more than one new road. The most important, perhaps, leads up the mountain from La Fayette to the summit and then traverses the wide plateau to the Dade county side, where it cuts through a tall bluff and descends to Trenton and Rising Fawn to connect with Tennessee's fine highway from Chattanooga toward Nashville. Another road, not yet complete, extends south and west to join the highway to Birmingham.

Few Georgians realize that the greater portion of Lookout mountain lies not in Tennessee but in Georgia, with a part in Alabama.
Because it has been reached heretofore only from Chattanooga, it is looked upon as a Tennessee possession. But even the big Lookout Mountain hotel is inside the Georgia line.

Until now Dade county has been known as the "lost county," because it could be reached only by traveling through a corner of Tennessee. A formidable barrier, Lookout mountain, cut it off and it was necessary to skirt around the mountain to reach it. The new highway goes up and across and down into Dade—and may be expected to impress Georgians anew with the wonders of mountain scenery within Georgia borders.

All this uncertainty has been fun, but maybe we should look up H. G. Wells and learn how civilization is going to turn out.

Non-Essentials

The British government has declared feminine girdles and brassieres non-essential in time of war. It has ruled against importation of these garments, or whatever they may be called.

Also a system of rationing for cosmetics has been placed in effect, limiting the amount of face powder, lipstick and so forth the British miss may purchase for her own adornment.

Literally, there can be no disagreement with the British ruling. After all, in war time, the chief value of women must be the more serious things of life, the keeping of the homes and of the canteens, cooking, sewing. The work that men did in times of peace, such as operating buses and running ambulances. Performing the duties of air raid wardens, of nurses and first-aid workers. Succoring the injured and comforting the bereaved.

And, to do this, the real woman needs no artificial aids to pulchritude.

Britain, hard-pressed by her enemy, gets down to essentials and lets the unnecessary trimmings go. For, if the worse comes to worst, a shiny nose is good enough for German conquerors to observe.

It is hoped the jurisdictions of Inquisitor Dies and the G-men can be more clearly defined, as there is nothing quite as harrowing as seeing another eye through the keyhole.

LOGAN-WALTER BILL SHOWDOWN

With few exceptions, the nation's newspapers line up in approval of the Logan-Walter bill, which, the NEW YORK TIMES says, "seeks to curb arbitrary and irresponsible action on the part of federal commissions and agencies." The TIMES adds the suggestion that because "Serious questions have been raised concerning the methods proposed in the bill . . . perhaps the ideal method of dealing with the problem . . . would be for congress to re-examine one by one the commissions and agencies it had set up and their method of procedure."

Against the bill, which provides for court review of actions and rulings by federal bureaus, is the ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH, which urges that the President "have his veto pen ready and the inkwell open" while pointing out that "The economic plunderers who oppose proper government regulation in the public interest want the Logan-Walter bill to become law." And for the bill is the DETROIT FREE PRESS, which hopes
"Mr. Roosevelt will not invoke his veto power, although this is doubtful in the light of the measure's progress to date." The FREE PRESS sees no "greater service to democracy on this side of the water than to speed the . . . bill on to the statute books as quickly as possible."

Other opinions:

"Any one who believes that a man or a business accused of violating the law is entitled to a day in court is for the Logan-Walter bill,"
declares the LOS ANGELES TIMES.

The President vetoes the bill "he will put himself in the position of saying that he doesn't trust the courts or is afraid to have findings of his bureaucratic agencies subjected to judicial scrutiny," in the opinion of the DENVER POST.

Science's work is never done. Hollywood can photograph the whole gamut of color and tints direct, but has to paint in the ingenue's
blush by hand.

For his latest book, the anthropologist,
Hooton, selects the title, "Why Men Behave

Can Peace Be Negotiated?

By DOROTHY THOMPSON.

Ludwell Denny, writing a series of articles, is suggesting that there is an underground movement for a "peace of negotiation" to settle the war in Europe, and that Mr. Churchill, backed up by the Roosevelt administration, is standing in the way. "But conditions may change."

The peace offensive, according to Mr. Denny, emanates from Berlin.
Hitler wants to hold the continent of Europe, and is prepared, if the war be stopped, to take Great Britain into junior partnership.

Articles like these, plus reports from England of serious damage from bombs and serious shipping losses, undoubtedly awaken in this country a hope that maybe the war can be stopped and things restored in a half-way tolerable manner. Influential groups in the American business world are unquestionably counting on a possible defeat of Britain by spring.
These and others show stubborn resistance to any radical increase of aid from us to Britain. Colonel Lindbergh is spokesman for a group who are counting positively on the collapse of Britain at no distant date, and a "new order in Europe" with which we, then, must co-operate. Indeed, in his Chicago speech last summer Colonel Lindbergh recommended that once Hitler's regime is established it will be our duty to make a treaty with it, thus abandoning once and for all the idea of "no entangling alliances." We must make no alliance now with Britain;
we must prepare to make one with a new order under Hitler.

ORIGINATE IN BERLIN

It is much better to examine these ideas rationally than to denounce them out of hand. But the first thing that must be made clear about them is that they originate in Berlin, and that they are part and parcel of a diplomatic offensive perfected by Hitler long ago and waged by him with extradicary success from 1936 to 1939.

There are parts of his technique of achieving "bloodless" war from the very beginning, he held forth the repeated hope that just one more gain would satisfy the Third Reich, and that war would occur only because of the lack of reason on the part of his opponents. And in this, he has been and still is justified. The whole world can have one sort of peace tomorrow, if it is prepared to live on Hitler's terms.

It will not, of course, have real peace. It will have the indefinite continuation of a reign of terror, in which, in the most arbitrary way, whole populations are moved from their homes and recolonized; political groups are exterminated; racial groups are reorganized into a hierarchical structure of Germans on top and lesser races beneath; all existing forms of culture and of law are obliterated; and the so-called German Revolution is substituted for the war itself.

STATUS OF ITALY

There is not the slightest doubt that Hitler would more than welcome, at this moment, a negotiated peace with Britain taken into junior partnership. Junior partnership with Nazi Germany is the status as it is at present enjoyed by Italy.
Junior partnership means collaboration in carrying out further the world program designed in Berlin.

There is no profound difference between the position of Mus-solini's Italy and that of conquered France. Italy does not have German troops in occupation of any of her soil, but she would have them tomorrow if she did not "behave." Italy is the caboose of a streamlined train hurtling through the world, and she cannot uncouple herself if she will. Her military and economic position is so weak in contrast to that of Germany that she is a prisoner, not a partner.

Italians are sore because the Greek infantry is using bayonet charges to drive off! Dachau's invincibles back toward the sea.
They say the bayonet is a barbarous weapon.

For goshakes, does Mussolini not only want to attack whoever and wherever he will, but dictate, too, the weapons to be used? It is just too bad, but personally we feel if the Italians will run at the sight of bayonets, of spears, of slingshots or of snowballs, then use them. It doesn't take much, it seems, to make the invincibles run, anyway.

Let's Not Forget.

However, while the Italians are bleating about the "savagery" of the bayonet as a weapon, it might be well to recall, once again, a few facts of not so distant history.

What nation was it that sent tanks and bombers and heavy artillery and all the horrors of mechanized war against people who were barely removed from the bow and arrow era in fighting equipment? Why, the Italians, of course, when they invaded Ethiopia.

Who was it who wrote of the extreme aesthetic pleasure he found in dropping bombs on groups of utterly defenseless, ignorant Ethiopian natives, and described the air view of the scene, when the bomb exploded, as "a rose-unfolding?" A red rose, red with the blood of the slaughtered.
Why, the son of Ill Dachau, himself.

Who was it who tried out the effectiveness of bombs on civilian populations in Spain? Why, the Italians.

And who was it who so heroically waited until France was on the canvas, just waiting for the completion of the count of ten, before kicking the prostrate nation? Why, the Italians.

It doesn't matter to me what weapon is used, if it will teach

anyone who believes that a man or a business accused of violating the law is entitled to
a day in court is for the Logan-Walter bill,"
declares the LOS ANGELES TIMES.

The President vetoes the bill "he will put himself in the position of saying that he doesn't trust the courts or is afraid to have findings of his bureaucratic agencies subjected to judicial scrutiny." The FREE PRESS sees no "greater service to democracy on this side of the water than to speed the . . . bill on to
the statute books as quickly as possible."

Candidate Or Columnist—They Do Not Mix Well.

"Reports persist," writes Malcolm W. Bingay, in the Detroit Free Press, "that Wendell Willkie is going to write a syndicated newspaper column. If he does, he can kiss any future presidential aspirations a fond farewell."

Right! He can't be a good columnist and a successful candidate at the same time. He couldn't be elected assistant inspector of short order restaurants.

Some of my forthcoming comments are Mr. Bingay's and some are my own ideas. The good ones are Mr. Bingay's.

He says Coolidge tried it and found he had nothing to say worth saying. Al Smith was almost as bad. He wrote with an eye to his own future, if any. Herbert Hoover tackled writing for the press, but he didn't speak his mind.

A good columnist or commentator, if he wants syndicated circulation and syndicate income, must know how to write. He must have a sense of humor and the ability to express it. He mustn't take himself too darn seriously. And he must tell the truth—as nearly as he can arrive at it—without regard to his own political fortunes.

Few men "big" enough to become political figures know how to write. They can hire good writers—cheaply. If they have a sense of humor they slip out some dark night and bury it. No real humorist since Lincoln ever got anywhere politically. Back country folk like a shirt-sleeved spellbinder with a volume of funny stories—if they hear them from the stump, with gestures. But they fall mighty flat in the national press.

The great American public remarks that this chap would be mighty good company at a barn dance, but has he got any sense? Good story telling is associated with clowning.

Can't Be Done.

But I shouldn't assume Mr. Willkie would blossom out as a frivolous columnist. He'd probably be serious. And sententious. Preaching a gospel and laying down a new set of commandments. So what? Under syndicate custom, he'd sell his daily screed to one newspaper in a city. Exclusive stuff. Newspapers wouldn't buy it otherwise.

And, as Mr. Bingay points out, that would damn him with the opposition sheets. Can you imagine a daily newspaper waxing enthusiastic over the opinions and formulations of a candidate-columnist whose stuff appears exclusively in the opposition sheet? Why give a boost to a chap and thus help plug a rival's circulation? Newspapers—believe it or not—are just as human as department stores or competing shoe repair shops.

Mr. Willkie may come back and gain friends and influence people and be our president four years hence. But not if he writes a newspaper column. A book would be bad, but not an insurmountable difficulty. Comparatively few voters read books. But a daily newspaper column? He might as well go home and decapitate his mother with a meat ax or give out an interview denouncing the Catholics, Protestants, Jews and Christian Scientists while declaring himself an atheist and asserting his belief that the Declaration of Independence was a piece of poppycock.

"What's an Optimist?"

More letters arriving with definitions of an optimist—seeking those cash prizes offered by the Atlanta Optimist Club. I have space for only a few. Here they are.

"A man who can leave the road on a curve at high speed and plow into a field, demolishing his car, and emerge with a smile because he knows he has helped a farmer dig his potatoes."—Mrs. F. L. Dale, Penn avenue.

"One who sees the doughnut and lets the pessimist see the hole."—M. J. Elliott, Decatur.

"A cheer merchant."—Roy Gaba, at least the signature looks like that, 1001 Boulevard, N. E.

The Pulse of the Public

The Constitution invites expression of opinion by its readers. This column is open for that purpose. All communications must be signed and all are subject to editing for conservation of space. Brevity makes argument effective and impels attention.

BELIEVES WE HAVE MISSED THE MARK.

Editor Constitution: Many of the programs for the relief of the farmer act as an umbrella spread over his head to keep off the rain while the flood waters are rising around his feet. Perhaps these programs are not designed to work that way—they may be planned to begin at the bottom and boost the farmer by building a firm foundation under him—but for some cause we have missed the mark—the farmer is left standing in the mire while the flood waters rise.

We need a program of self-help, beginning with local or community organization. Or, perhaps, first, with informal discussion groups—a survey of the situation, recognition of the problems, self-participation in seeking solutions, who has known what true suffering may be:

Editor Townsend of the Dahlonega Nugget relates disappointing experience of Lumpkin county trapper:

"One of the Wahoo fellows went to his rabbit box not long ago and saw something in it, and he poured the animal out in a sack and swung it across his shoulder, well pleased, with a big smile on his face, thinking he would have rabbit for dinner. When he got to the house and took it out of the sack found it to be a big boar cat. All that he got out of his catch was the fun of seeing the cat 'ball the jack' when he turned him loose. Such is luck."

As an organization we stand for free suffrage as against suffrage resting on an economic basis. Free suffrage does not preclude educational requirements for voting.

The payment of a dollar tax by a man of means cannot be compared to the payment of such a sum by a man with an income of $35 a year, which is the per capita spendable income of citizens of one Georgia county. We therefore hold that the payment of the poll tax cannot correctly be pointed to as prima facie evidence of interest in government.

Under Georgia law, all back poll taxes must be paid six months preceding an election, before interest in the election has been aroused. The average citizen frequently overlooks this time requirement, while those with personal interest in government are on the job to see that their tax is paid, as well as that of those whose vote they can influence or control. We hold that in practice the poll tax tends to produce an electorate in which there is a preponderance of those with personal interest.

We question the claim that more corruption exists in non-poll tax states than in those that have this tax as a suffrage requirement; and we feel it would be difficult to prove the claim. While the corruption is of a different nature, it is none the less insidious.

The average citizen in his everyday work contributes to the maintenance and upbuilding of his nation. Further, each pays in hidden taxes to the support of that government. That this is usually not realized by him is, we hold, beside the point. Each citizen in a nation is subject to call to give his life for his government, and even now thousands of young men are being called into service. These facts, we hold, entitle a citizen to the privilege of expressing his will as to his government without the additional payment of a poll tax fee.

We further hold that, in an era such as ours, we face a serious situation when we disfranchise in fact, if not in theory, a large section of our people. If they are barred from expressing their will through government, we are vulnerable to their expressing it through extra-governmental channels.

MRS. FRED SCANLING, President, Executive Committee, Georgia League of Women Voters.

Five Witnesses Name Cameron As a Flogger

East Point Awning Worker Under Indictment on Five Counts.

George Cameron, awning worker and former treasurer of the East Point Ku Klux Klan, was named by five persons yesterday as having participated in alleged Klan floggings in south Fulton county.

Cameron, who went on trial on a five-count indictment, was identified by D. M. Harper, an alleged victim; Mrs. W. H. Ables, wife of an alleged victim; J. W. Wilkes, another alleged victim, and W. C. Bishop and L. L. Trimble, alleged accomplices.

Bishop said Cameron participated in the flogging of E. K. Rammage, Atlanta printer, April 30, 1938, and Louis H. Brown, June 4, 1937. Trimble substantiated Bishop's testimony in connection with the Brown case.

Mrs. Ables stuck to her identification of the defendant as one of three men who came to her house on August 11, 1939, and carried her husband off despite a determined effort by Defense Attorney Harold Sheats to make her admit that she was not positive of it until after a police officer had pointed out Cameron.

Harper, who was beaten July 7, 1939, testified he was positive in his identification, while Wilkes, who successfully fled from the floggers, pointed out the defendant.

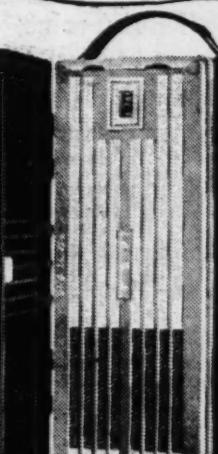

ant as one of those who came to his home and attempted to force him into an automobile.

The case is expected to go to the jury today. Assistant Solicitors Quincy Arnold and Daniel Duke said the state would rest its case before noon. Judge John D. Humphries is presiding.

REBEKAHS RESUSCITATED.
LINDALE, Ga., Dec. 3.—The Lindale Rebekahs here has been resuscitated under the direction of Mrs. Berite Durden, president of the Georgia Rebekah Assembly. New candidates were initiated by the Cedartown lodge's degree team.

W. H. Vaughan Joins TVA as Research Chief

Tech Engineering Experiment Station Director Begins Leave.

W. Harry Vaughan began yesterday a year's leave of absence as director of the Georgia Tech State Engineering Experiment Station to accept a position as chief of the regional products research division of the Tennessee Valley Authority.

He will be succeeded here by Dr. Harold Bunker, who will continue to serve as head of the school's chemical engineering department as well as experiment station director.

Vaughan helped to organize and became director of the station in 1934. During his administration 45 projects have been studied, the leading of which are a flax decorticator, a helicopter, cotton drawing process, resin emulsifier for asphalt, a wood preservative and investigation into the uses of kaolin.

He was graduated from Georgia Tech in 1924 and took his master's degree at the University of Illinois. He returned to Tech as an instructor in the ceramics engineering department, and later became head of the department.

The new director, Dr. Bunker, was appointed by the institution's president, Dr. Marion L. Brittain. Bunker is a native of Eaton, Ohio, and a graduate of the University of Minnesota. He is a member of the Georgia Academy of Sciences and the experiment station council.

Dr. Bunker was closely affiliated with a station project where southern pine pulp was manufactured on a pilot plan basis, and also directed the work of the development of the flax decorticator.

Awarding of East Point Pipe Contract Delayed

Awarding of contracts for pipe to be used in the new East Point waterworks has been postponed until a future council meeting, Clerk Early Cole said yesterday.

At a meeting Monday night council opened the bids, but decided to debate further on whether or not cast iron or steel pipes would be used in the $600,000 project.

G. W. T. W. Barred From Travel Film

Ted Todd, independent movie producer, formerly of Atlanta, is permanently forbidden, under terms of a Fulton superior court verdict, from use of the words, "Gone With the Wind," in connection with a partially completed movie travolgue depicting the scenes made famous by Margaret Mitchell's best-selling novel.

The consent verdict, taken yesterday, was filed by Selznick International Pictures, Inc., producers of the film version of the book.

It prevents use of the title "or any colorable imitation thereof."

Toddy, according to the suit, had proposed to call his travolgue "The Gone-With-the-Wind Country."

2 Poles-'Deux Gaules' In French Cause Riot

BASEL, Switzerland, Dec. 3.—(P)—Two bamboo fishing poles caused a riot between French students and German soldiers in which two persons were killed and many injured near Paris' Arc de Triomphe on Armistice Day, the newspaper Le Democrate de Dolemont reported tonight.

The French for "two poles" is "deux gaules"—which sounds like the name of the "Free French" leader, De Gaulle. The riot started when the parading students pointed to the poles they carried and shouted "Vive! Vive!"

Girls Seeking Film Careers Select Roles

Screen Test Shooting Will Begin Friday Afternoon.

By LEE ROGERS

Roles chosen by Georgia's glamor girls for their screen tests, which may open the gates of Hollywood for them and will win for one the title of "Miss Anniversary" were announced yesterday.

Actual shooting of the tests will begin at 2:30 o'clock Friday afternoon, with four tests being made then; four at 2:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon, and three at 8 o'clock Sunday night. The public will be admitted to watch the tests made with an admission of 25 cents going to the British War Relief Society. The girls making the best test will share honors with Vivien Leigh at the anniversary premiere of "Gone With the Wind" December 12.

Roles Picked.

The girls, and their roles, are: Pat Carlisle, 17-year-old blonde with blue eyes, will re-enact a dramatic scene from Joan Crawford's role in "The Bride Wore Red." Pat is 5 feet 1 inch tall and a senior at North Fulton High school with some experience in school plays.

Glenna Hogan, 18-year-old working girl with brown hair and eyes, will do a bit from Norma Shearer's role in "The Last of Mrs. Cheney." Her height is 5 feet four.

Raiford Ragsdale, 17, 5 feet 3 inches tall with blonde hair, blue eyes, and speech training, will tackle the role created by Myrna Loy in "Manhattan Melodrama."

Selects 'Riptide.'

Carolyn Williams, 17-year-old high school student with two years' voice training, picked as her script a portion of one of Norma Shearer's speeches in "Riptide." Carolyn, like Miss Shearer, is not tall, being 5 feet 3 inches, has brown hair and eyes.

Louella Stone, erect and vivacious, will play the title role in "The Great McGinty."

Greek Troops Advance Close To Porto Edda

Italians Retreating Fast From Sea Base in Southern Albania.

ATHENS, Dec. 4. — (AP)—Greek troops have advanced to within a mile and a quarter of Porto Edda, the Italians' southernmost sea base in Albania, a government spokesman declared early today. In that area, he said, the Fascists were retreating rapidly.

It was reported, too, that Greek gains were continuing along the entire front despite bad weather and stubborn Italian resistance at some points.

One important advance claimed was the occupation of the heights some six miles southeast of Argirocastro, Italian supply base.

The high command said that Greek bombers had successfully attacked storerooms behind the Fascist lines, setting big fires. Two Italian planes were declared shot down to one Greek loss.

An important thrust, the government spokesman said, was that of the left wing, which was reported to have advanced beyond Porto Edda in an encircling movement that threatened to trap the last Italian fighting force in the southwestern tip of Albania.

Can 'Get By' in French, Leahy Tells Newsmen

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3. — (AP)—Admiral William D. Leahy, newly appointed ambassador to France, told newsmen today he could "get by" in the French language.

Leahy's remark was made in reply to a question based on the reported statement by Marshal Petain, chief of the French state, that he hoped the new ambassador could speak French because they would have much to talk about.

The newly appointed ambassador conferred briefly with Secretary Hull today. He is expected to discuss various questions concerning his new post with other State Department officials during the next few days.

IN PEACE AND IN WAR—Britain's famous Coldstream Guards, wearing their familiar bear-skin shako hats and bright-colored dress uniforms, march in parade at a peace-time ceremony. In war time, however, it's a different story and the Guards swap their bright regiments for service khaki.

Steps Taken To Bar Strikes In U. S. Defense

Congressmen Will Study Wilson Plan for Keeping Peace.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3. — (UP)—The House Judiciary Committee tonight secretly started machinery designed to impose legal curbs on labor's right to strike in national defense industries.

Chairman Hatton W. Summers, Democrat, Texas, decided at a meeting of the group to appoint a sub-committee to explore which means through which it is believed industrial peace can be maintained, including one used by Woodrow Wilson during the World War.

Wilson wrote strikers at the Remington arms plant at Bridgeport, Conn., that unless they returned to work under an arbitration award they would be barred from employment in all defense factories for a year. He said also that the draft board would be instructed to waive their exemptions based on "alleged usefulness in war production."

Before such action could be taken in this emergency, however, arbitration machinery would have to be set up and the conscription law amended. Suggestions were made at the committee's meeting today that both proposals be considered by the sub-committee.

Defense plants have been comparatively free of serious labor discord since the multimillion-dollar preparedness program was initiated. Congressional moves toward restrictive measures are based largely on the anticipation that trades unions will demand higher wages to meet the rising cost of living under the rearmament boom.

This note was struck at the American Federation of Labor convention in New Orleans, La., last week when delegates enthusiastically approved demands that the government set the pace in tilting wages in the current emergency by approving higher pay for skilled workers in Navy yards.

Stand of Green.

Organized labor considers the right to strike as one of the pillars of trade unionism, and a battle royal is certain to come over any congressional attempt to impose curbs.

This was forecast by AFL President William Green, who, after repeatedly pledging that organization's full co-operation with the defense program, said in an interview with the Press last week:

"American labor will not give up its right to strike without a hard fight—and such a surrender should not be asked of it."

This contingency would arise under a bill introduced by Representative Howard Smith, anti-New Deal Virginia Democrat, who headed the house committee which investigated the National Labor Relations Board. His measure would require the workers to give 30 days' notice before striking and compel them to submit their differences to arbitration.

If arbitration failed, the President would be authorized to publish the findings and make comment thereon. Employers would be forbidden from changing working hours or wages without a 30-day notice to the Secretary of Labor.

Bad Weather Halts Nazis' Bombing Raids

Midlands Town Main Objective; London Has 'Nuisance' Attacks.

LONDON, Dec. 4. — (Wednesday)—(AP)—The German Luftwaffe broke off its attacks on London and a western midlands town shortly before midnight last night in the thick of many flying conditions.

The midlands town apparently was the main objective, although the raiders flew over Wales and other provincial areas and paid London fleeting "nuisance" visits, dropping some bombs in the face of heavy anti-aircraft fire.

The midlands raid, of comparatively short duration, was the first on that town in several days. Principal damage reported was to shops and homes. Several persons were believed trapped under demolished homes.

In south England, a German plane dived on a bus and attempted to machine-gum it. The driver shepherded his passengers out of the bus into a ditch and a shower of bullets just missed the vehicle. There were no casualties.

The Germans last night attacked London in the morning rush hour and dive-bombed one section of the capital. Several houses were damaged and some injuries were reported after that attack—the first of four daylight raids on London.

It was in the west—at Bristol—that the Germans Monday night turned destructive force. They pounded that important western port for six hours in the third big raid there in 10 days.

The British, meanwhile, said their air offensive included another attack on Lorient, France, where

Britain Orders 60 Freighters For Christmas From America Truce in War

19 Merchant Vessels, Cruiser Reported Sunk in Day.

LONDON, Dec. 3. — (AP)—The British disclosed today that they have turned to United States shipyards with an order for 60 new freighters to meet their most immediate menace—Nazi raids from on, above and below the surface of the sea.

In addition, Ronald H. Cross, the youthful minister of shipping, told the house of commons: "Old but serviceable United States vessels, including vessels belonging to the Maritime Commission, have been and will continue to be purchased as opportunity offers."

British Losses Heavy.

British figures alone placed the total of British, Allied and neutral ships sunk since the start of the war at around 3,000,000 tons, and the minister of shipping only recently forecast a supreme German effort to wreck the British convoy system, vital to the transport of American supplies, by next year.

The reported use of German super-submarines carrying 20 torpedoes and operating partly as surface craft, and the acknowledged deficiencies in British destroyers have made the danger to the convoys extremely acute. The British have admitted the loss of 33 destroyers, and numerous others have been damaged.

That American aid—and means to get it to England—was the question of the day for even the throne was evident from the fact that both Prime Minister Churchill and A. B. Purvis, chairman of the British Purchasing Commission to the United States, saw King George VI at Buckingham palace.

Missing Decatur Youth Is Found

The family of Ross Duran, 20-year-old Decatur youth who has been missing since Saturday, last night reported receipt of a telegram from New Orleans saying he had been found there suffering from amnesia.

The family did not amplify the statement and did not say where in New Orleans Duran was staying.

New Orleans police reported they had no record of an amnesia victim being found there. George Jackson, assistant chief of DeKalb county police, said the family told him of the telegram, but that no message had been received by DeKalb county police from New Orleans.

The Germans have built a submarine base from which to raid Atlantic shipping.

Further, the British said, their bombers scored a direct hit on an "enemy supply base" off Norway yesterday, and attacked military objectives at Naples and Catania, Sicily, last night.

national, suggested that the Pope's appeal for a Christmas free of fighting would not prevail.

In Rome, Italian authorities withheld comment, but Italy's compliance was expected in unofficial circles, provided Britain and her allies signified acceptance.

(In London, however, well-informed circles said Prime Minister Churchill's "no" to a Christmas truce suggestion made in parliament last week also covered the Pope's proposal.

(Authorized German quarters commented that it never had been the practice of German fighting forces to disturb the holy day. They said that last Christmas the western front was inactive; that no initiative had been taken by the German army during World War Christmases.)

'The Final Test' With the United States Brought Closer, Press Says.

TOKYO, Dec. 4. — (Wednesday)—(AP)—The latest American loan to China brings Japan and the United States closer to "the final test," the Japanese newspaper Miyako declared today.

It said Japan did not intend to attack any nation, "but cases may arise where Japan is forced to accept the American challenge."

The paper added that "whether an armed clash comes in the Pacific depends solely on American action."

Chugai, another paper, professed to see increased opposition toward Japan since the United States presidential election.

Number One Draftee Calm In Excitement

told the Governor, and asked that a complimentary word be passed back to the cook. He was amused to learn that the cook himself would be a draftee if, unfortunately, he had not at one time committed a felony, for which he is on parole. The Army does not accept men with felony records.

"Man that can cook chicken like him ought not to waste his time carrying a rifle," Clyde observed.

Touring the Cyclorama museum while waiting for the lecture to start he saw several things that interested him. One was a stuffed possum in a glass case.

Caught Rabbit.

"That rascal sure does look natural," he observed.

Near the possum there was a rabbit, also stuffed.

"I guess the folks are having fried rabbit for supper tonight," he said. "I caught them one out in the field in front of the house yesterday. We got a little old white feist dog that hangs 'round there and he is not much good for anything but he will run a rabbit. He jumped one out in front of the house yesterday and run him around there for nearly 'bout an hour. Finally me and some of the boys went out and helped him run it down. I guess he run it within 30 yards of me and I grabbed it. It was about run down," he added modestly.

Fine Picture.

In the Cyclorama he watched and listened with rapt attention as C. J. Bailey, the lecturer, described the Battle of Atlanta. When the lights came up he turned to General Williamson and said:

"Man, that is mighty fine as a picture but I would hate to get tangled up in a mess like that."

An ordeal that most men would dread more than a front-line trench Clyde went through without a quaver. They took him to the Fox theater and turned a big spotlight on him and introduced him to the audience.

"Ladies and gen'lmen," he said, "I'm in the Army now." He paused a minute while the crowd laughed. "And all I want to do is to be the best soldier in the United States. I thank you."

He retained his practical side through all the adulation. When the Cyclorama trip was over he sought out his brother, Hoyt, 19, who had come up to see the fun.

"You better get back on home now," he said. "It's getting late and you've got to milk."

Now and then realization that there was a difference in men and officers in the Army seemed to creep into his understanding. Once, when posing for a picture General Williamson told him, "Now you just relax, Clyde. Don't be so stiff."

He grinned. "Okey Doke" he said. Then realizing that this was perhaps not the proper response he amended it quickly. "I mean O. K., sir," he said.

Talks With Reid.

With a brief pause for our hero to get back into his uniform for the night festivities the party continued apace at the Biltmore in the late afternoon. There Clyde chatted easily with Chief Justice Charles S. Reid, who spoke feelingly and retrospectively of the days when he himself was familiar with the galvanized washtub in which Clyde the day before was pictured performing his ablutions.

He showed his first sign of awe when Lieutenant Colonel Stacey Knopf, Fourth Corps Area public relations officer, burst upon the scene in the resplendent full dress uniform of his rank.

Clyde looked at the crimson facing on the lapels and the loops and whorls of braid. "Man alive that sure is a pretty suit," he said.

Reception Held.

From the Biltmore the party progressed to the Henry Grady hotel where genial James J. Page and Fred Collier were hosts at a little reception. He showed a flash of fine horse sense that cheered the soul of Major Pat Gillen, who was sort of looking after him. Admitting that he was a man who took a snort occasionally, he told Major Gillen he thought maybe, to keep anybody from worrying about him, he would just take one to be sociable.

Major Gillen, who had been somewhat fearful of public criticism if the Army's No. One Inductee got in his cups and started singing "Sweet Adeline," was greatly pleased by this.

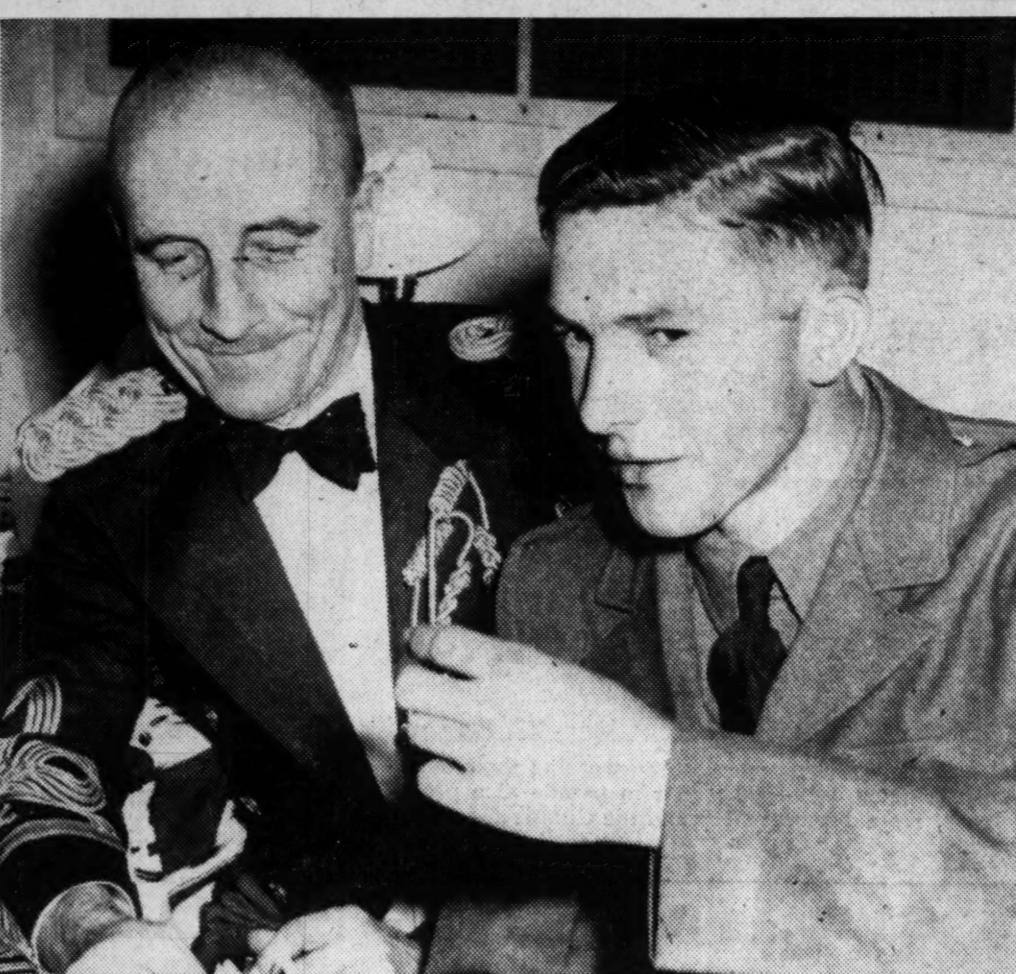

Later in the night, at the dinner in the Henry Grady's Spanish room, the Heard county boy really upheld the honor of three million draftees.

Major Gillen, who had been somewhat fearful of public criticism if the Army's No. One Inductee got in his cups and started singing "Sweet Adeline," was greatly pleased by this.

Then, at the end of the song, she turned to kiss him. He met her halfway. He met her more than halfway. In fact, he entered into the spirit of the thing so thoroughly he completely hid the lady and the photographers, who had framed this up, had to ask it to be done over again. It was done several times, with our hero participating enthusiastically.

Then Miss Edith Hardee, a pretty blonde, came out and the procedure was repeated. This time people in the back of the house were yelling "Wow!" and "Break!" before it was over.

Our hero lifted a lip-stick

WINED AND DINED—But mostly dined, for he is a man who loves his victuals. Clyde Brown takes on a little nourishment as his day of glory nears its close. The only uniform that awed him was the resplendent full dress garb of Lieutenant Colonel Stacey Knopf, at left, Fourth Corps Area's Public Relations officer, shown serving him.

Army to Induct 160,000 Men During January

Draft Action Postponed Until Then, Except in 4th Corps Area.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Further induction of draftees will be postponed until next month except in the Fourth Corps Area, War Department officials said tonight, but approximately 160,000 trainees will be taken into the ranks next month to compensate for the delay.

Officials said one of the chief reasons for the postponement was a desire to avoid congestion of railroads which already are beginning to feel the annual burden of holiday traffic. Another factor, officials said, was that voluntary enlistments had exceeded expectations. The availability of facilities also played a part in the decision, it was explained.

Army officials said the first call for men under the draft program, which brought 20,370 trainees into the Army, was designed as a "test run." Personnel officers from all corps areas are here now studying the first operation of the draft machinery with a view of ironing out "rough spots" so that when large scale inductions get under way next month, they will be conducted smoothly.

Officials said the Fourth Corps Area, with headquarters at Atlanta, would induct its quota of men under the first call this month.

The Business Opportunity column in the Want Ads of The Constitution furnishes a fertile field for small investment and profitable effort.

A MILLION PEOPLE DAILY FOLLOW ALL-BRAN'S "BETTER WAY"

NO WONDER this marvelous breakfast cereal has swept the country! Just compare a bowl of crisp, flavorful ALL-BRAN with sugar and cream with the usual remedies for constipation due to lack of "bulk." And remember that ALL-BRAN also makes the most delicious bran muffins you ever tasted! The recipe is on every package.

HERE'S GOOD NEWS for anyone troubled with the common kind of constipation that's due to lack of "bulk" in the diet.

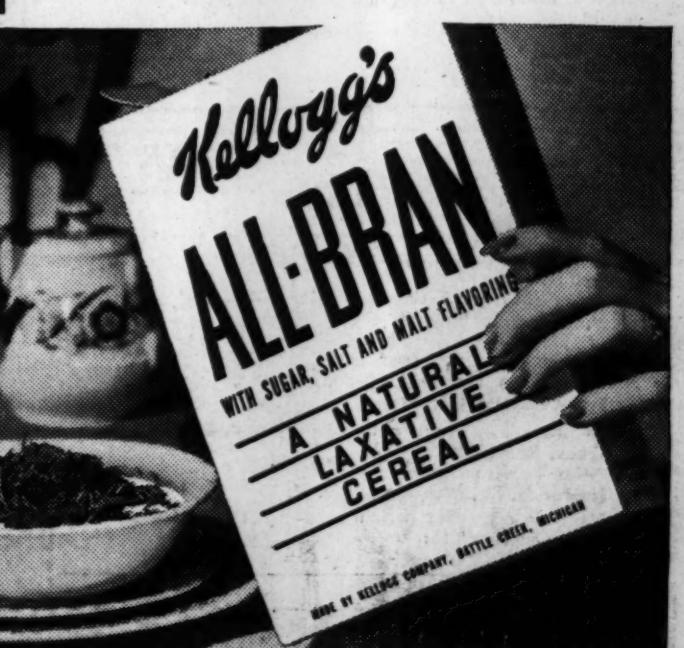

YOU DON'T HAVE TO DEPEND on remedies that may offer only temporary relief. You can get at the cause of the trouble and correct it by regularly eating this marvelous cereal.

There are two ways to combat constipation due to the right kind of "bulk" in the diet. One way is to wait till it strikes, then take an emergency medicine. The other is to get at the cause of the trouble—and both correct it and prevent its recurrence. This is ALL-BRAN's "better way."

Not only is it better for you, it's a lot more pleasant, too. You'll really enjoy this crisp, ready-to-eat cereal with sugar and cream, and perhaps some fruit. Eat it regularly, drink plenty of water, and see if you don't forget all about common constipation.

You'll like ALL-BRAN in muffins, too. This delicious cereal makes the most marvelous muffins that ever melted a pat of butter! They are just as effective as the cereal. You'll find the recipe for ALL-BRAN muffins on every package.

Be sure, however, to get the genuine KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN. Accept no substitute. ALL-BRAN is backed by 20 years of experience and millions of satisfied users. It is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek and sold by every grocer.

Vinson Favors Loan Help for Debtor Nations

Repeal of Johnson Act Urged by Georgia Congressman.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION
MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., Dec. 3.—Representative Carl Vinson, of the sixth congressional district, today advocated repeal of the Johnson act, which prohibits extension of credit to European nations defaulting on their World War debts to the United States.

He also reiterated previous assertions that this nation should extend "every possible aid to Great Britain so long as our national defense is not jeopardized."

Mr. Vinson also expressed his opposition to the United States providing food and clothing for the people of Belgium, Denmark, Norway, the Netherlands and other countries that have fallen under the domination of Hitler.

Any food and supplies that might be sent to the occupied zones, he said, eventually would fall into German hands, and would serve as a means of defeating the British blockade.

Mr. Vinson would not hazard a guess as to the chances of a bill to repeal or suspend the Johnson act when the 77th congress opens January 3. However, he hinted that such a measure probably would come up for discussion, and admitted he would support it.

He said he felt credit should be extended to Greece, also, for the purchase of war supplies.

Transportation Club Will Elect

Transportation Club of Atlanta will elect 1941 officers at the Central of Georgia Railway ticket office, on Forsyth street, during the afternoon of December 13.

Candidates of the "Tom Tom Party" are W. E. Thompson, president; C. L. Denk Jr., first vice president; B. M. Self, second vice president, and directors: W. H. Murray, J. E. Eberhart, A. L. Day, H. S. Young, George L. Rosenbaum, H. H. Clokey, T. H. Kidd and W. N. Pendleton Sr.

The "Merrymakers Party" is offering E. L. Setzer, president; G. W. Leyhe, first vice president; R. C. McLemore, second vice president; directors: H. C. Astin, C. T. Kilgore, B. J. King, J. A. Russell, P. S. Vance, J. O. Perry, Roy Moss and J. H. Hampton.

Engineer Must Atlanta Player Ring Bell, Too, On Leading Court Decides Bridge Team

Blowing Whistles at Crossings in Towns Ruled Not Enough.

An engineer must ring his bell of his locomotive in addition to blowing his whistle when approaching a railroad crossing in a city or town, the Georgia court of appeals held yesterday.

This ruling was in the case of Mrs. Salema Chandler, who brought suit for $20,000 against H. D. Pollard, receiver for the Central of Georgia railway, because of the death of her husband at a railway crossing in Marshallville January 27, 1937.

"Upon approaching a crossing located within the corporate limits of a city, town or village, the engineer of a train is required to constantly toll the bell of the locomotive and is not relieved from a compliance with this requirement by blowing the whistle of the engine," the court held.

Today in Atlanta Churches

The Woman's Missionary Society of the Morningside Baptist church will meet from 11 until 12 o'clock today for the "Week of Prayer for Foreign Missions."

Mother's class of the Park Street Methodist church will meet at 10:30 o'clock this morning at the church. A turkey dinner will be served.

Mrs. Frank Burney, state president of the Baptist Woman's Missionary Union, will speak at 7:30 o'clock tonight at the First Baptist church. The Business and Professional Women's Circle will be in charge of the "Week of Prayer for Foreign Missions" program.

Calling Doctor for Wife, Farmer, 70, Drops Dead

WASHINGTON, Ga., Dec. 3.—(AP)—John Henry Thaxton, a farmer about 70 years of age and a lifelong resident of Oglethorpe county, came to the R. H. Spratlin store in this county to telephone for a physician for his wife, seriously ill.

Just as the call was completed and he started to leave, Thaxton fell dead of a heart attack.

Buzzer Replaces Lost Voice, Mute Makes Speech Over Radio

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE,
Associated Press Science Editor.
NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—John J. Smith, New York newspaperman, a mute whose vocal cords have been gone for nine years, tonight pressed a small button on the side of his throat and talked, distinctly, over a national radio broadcast.

The buzzer replaced his lost voice. Its sound, a male monotone buzz, passed through the walls of his throat to the spot where a normal voice box would be.

Mere by moving his mouth and lips in the manner of speech, Smith talked.

The buzzer—operated by two small flashlight batteries—is something new to science, the first and only one yet made, and the miracle of its use is that the voiceless person does not have to learn how to talk. The sound is there for his use, right in the old familiar place in the throat.

He does not even have to expel any breath—Smith cannot, for he has to breathe through a tube. This first model buzzer gave some slight changes of pitch, in imitation of part of the human voice's natural range, by the simple expedient of rocking the vibrating button from side to side.

Previous devices have been used by the voiceless, but this is the first one to put a substitute voice in the normal speaking position.

Long Illness Fatal to Prominent Banker and Mason.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION
MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., Dec. 3.—J. F. Bell, 69, prominent Milledgeville churchman, fraternal leader, banker and retired merchant, died today after a long illness.

A native and lifelong resident of Milledgeville, Mr. Bell operated a mercantile business until his retirement several years ago due to ill health. At his death, he was chairman of the board of directors of the Merchants' and Farmers' Bank.

He was a member of the Methodist church, and active in its affairs.

As a Mason, he was widely known throughout the state. He was a past master of Benevolent Lodge No. 3, Free and Accepted Masons; past high priest of Temple Chapter No. 6, Royal Arch Masons; past commander of Plantagenet Commandery No. 12, Knights Templar, and past grand high priest of the grand chapter, Royal Arch Masons of Georgia. He served 20 years as chairman of the finance committee of the grand commandery of Knights Templar.

Surviving Mr. Bell are his wife, Mrs. Ophelia Moore Bell; four sons, June C. and J. F. Bell Jr. of Milledgeville, George H. Bell of Charlotte, N. C., and John Bell of Atlanta; two daughters, Mrs. Charlie Napier of Washington, D. C., and Mrs. D. M. Wells, a stepdaughter, Mrs. D. W. Heidecker, of Atlanta, and two brothers, E. E. and Miller S. Bell of Milledgeville.

Rites will be held at 2:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at the Liberty street residence here. Interment will be in City cemetery.

Ralph T. Jones, associate editor of The Atlanta Constitution, will speak to the Atlanta English Club at 6 o'clock Tuesday night, December 10, at the Mayfair restaurant. There will be an election of officers.

F. S. Dauwalt, assistant manager of the National Board of Fire Underwriters, of New York City, will be guest speaker at the annual meeting of the Insurance Library Association of Atlanta at 6:30 o'clock tonight at the Georgian Terrace hotel.

Seventy-fifth annual meeting and banquet of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce will be held at $500 to the Hebrew Orphans' Home of Atlanta and $500 to a faithful servant, Macon Edwards. Remainder of the estate, valued at $50,000, was left to his wife and other relatives.

George Bunker, 28, Negro, pleaded guilty to burglary charges in Fulton superior court yesterday and was sentenced to serve from 10 to 20 years on the public works. The indictments listed two other felony convictions.

The Fulton county commissioners will meet in regular session at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at the court house. Only routine matters and the customary road improvement petitions are scheduled for consideration.

Some folks still can't believe their eyes

GOING over Buick dealers' reports on our 1941 models, we find an unusual thing happening.

Time and again cars come in for the usual inspections with an extra note of instructions—"Please check the gas gauge needle."

There's nothing wrong with those gas gauge needles—they work perfectly.

But even after hundreds of miles, people mistrust their eyes when they

BUICK PRICES BEGIN AT

see the snail-like pace from the Full mark toward Empty—they don't see how it's possible for a car as big as Buick to go so far on so little.

But it does—and for good reasons.

The whole FIREBALL engine was designed and built to get the most good out of modern gasolines.

And the simple secret of Compound Carburetion is that it keeps your engine running on its most frugal diet for all normal driving—and provides full feed only when you need, want and call for the lift of extra wallop.

Meantime even the gears are helping save money—for the regular high gear in a Buick gives you the economy of the so-called "gas-saving" top speeds you hear boosted so enthusiastically.

The big thing is, of course, that this is no small car that's setting these economy figures. There are all the room, size, impressiveness, comfort and downright thrilling performance you expect from a Buick.

Maybe that's why people still hesitate to believe their own eyes.

We assure them, however—and you too—that it isn't because the needle's out of kilter that it goes down so slowly. It's because that needle's in a Buick—a thrifty and thrilling 1941 FIREBALL Buick.

100 Opportunity Families Pay Big Dividends

Contributors Know Their Money Will Help Worthwhile Persons.

By FRANK DRAKE
Did you ever stop to think for a moment about getting value for your money when you give to others?

Would you pay $10 or $100 for a "pig in a poke"? Would you buy a dress, or a suit, or a car without knowing what you were getting?

Not many people would shop like that, because if they did, they would soon be broke and have nothing. Yet—we hate to say it, many persons give like that. They give, generously and warm-heartedly, but far too often what they contribute is wasted!

City's Neediest.
That is why The Constitution asks you this morning to carefully consider the value of giving to the Ten Opportunity fund this Christmas when you send along your "Santa Claus check." Opportunity families, presented each year by this newspaper in cooperation with the Family Welfare Society, are the city's neediest—and the city's most deserving. Opportunity families pay dividends!

Here's how: no matter what the terrifying problems they face, they are the ones who are struggling with all their might to become independent, self-supporting. So many of them, over the long period of years, have won out that there is no doubt helping such families is worthwhile. Last Christmas 40 families were "adopted" for a year. In 11 months so many had overcome their difficulties that a total of 82 families were aided by Opportunity funds! That's dividends!

Deserve Help.
And that is proof that the Opportunity families are deserving of your help. You get value for your money because you help rehabilitate desperate fathers and distressed mothers and because you help feed and clothe helpless children. More than that, you assure unhappy men and women and sad little boys and girls of the very happiest of Christmases!

Remember this when you give your something to help others this Christmas. Start the ball rolling right now. Bring or mail a contribution, a dime, a dollar or many dollars, to Hugh H. Trotter, vice president and business manager of The Constitution. It will help!

Striking Plumbers Are Back at Work

About 100 plumbers and steamfitters, employed on three government projects by the Loftis Plumbing and Heating Company, returned to work yesterday, having won the point over which they went on strike a week before.

By agreement, W. A. Hardy, of Gadsden, Ala., was supplanted as superintendent by J. B. Bottenreiter, member of the local plumbers' union. Hardy's importation, although he is a union member, caused the walkout.

Mott Gormley, business agent of Local No. 72 of the union, made the peace agreement with J. H. Loftis, vice president of the employing firm.

Atlanta To Ratify Nominees Today

Atlanta voters will go to the polls once again today to ratify 34 nominees of the September city primaries.

A total of 37,557 persons are entitled to cast ballots, but only a small percentage of them are expected to visit the 38 precincts which will be opened at 7 o'clock in the morning and close at 7 o'clock in the afternoon.

There is no contest for any of the positions, Joe L. Richardson, city clerk in charge of the election, pointed out.

Included in the list of nominees are a mayor, 12 councilmen, 6 aldermen, 6 members of the board of education, and 9 department heads including two recorders.

Seven Georgia Youths Transferred by Navy

Seven youths who enlisted in the United States navy through the Atlanta navy recruiting station in the New Post Office building were transferred from the Naval Training Station, Norfolk, Va., on November 30. They are Henry Moody Chandler, son of Mrs. Hattie Mac Chandler, 249 Whitehall street, S. W.; Albert Henry Smith, son of Mrs. Nina Janette Smith, of 859 Juniper street, N. E.; Ernest Linwood Crowley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Dimmick Crowley, of 184 Stovall street, S. E.; Edward Rayfield Aiken, of Dallas; William Francis McConnell, of Decatur; Radford Franklin McClendon, of Jackson, and Harris Clarence Broom, of Rydal.

McNutt Is Appointed Defense Coordinator

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—(P)—Co-ordination of all health, welfare and similar activities of the national defense program has been assigned to Paul V. McNutt, federal security administrator.

The White House announced today that the action was taken by the Council of National Defense with the approval of President Roosevelt.

Under the order, McNutt, cooperating with the Defense Commission, will supervise health, medical, welfare, nutrition, recreation and other related fields of activity affecting national defense.

The health and medical committee established by the Defense Commission on September 19 was transferred to the Federal Security Agency.

Atlanta Belle Writes Song And Music For Her Wedding

• • • AN ATLANTA BELLE has not only written a song for her forthcoming wedding—she has also composed the music by which it is to be sung.

The gifted bride-elect is lovely Eleanor Van Fleet, who will be married to Raymond Forehand on Saturday. And her close friend, Louise Huddleston Peacock, has been chosen to sing the song. Eleanor's mother, Mrs. Rodney Van Fleet, also wrote a song for her wedding 24 years ago, it seems, so it's a sort of family custom, this writing of songs for one's wedding.

Eleanor's composition is taken from her favorite chapter of the Bible, the 13th chapter of Corinthians, and marks her first attempt at a song of a religious nature, though she has written them since early childhood. It is appropriately entitled "Love Never Faileth," and the words are as follows:

*Though I speak with the tongues of men and of angels
And have not love, I am become a sounding brass, or tinkling cymbal.
And though I have the gift of prophecy and all knowledge and have faith to remove the mountains, but have not love,
I am nothing.
Love endeth not, is not puffed up.
Doth not behave itself unseemly, thinketh no will is not provoked.
Rejoiceth not in iniquity, but rejoiceth in the truth, and beareth all things, believeth all things, hopeth all things, and endureth all things.
Love never faileth, and though I speak with the tongues of men and of angels
And have not love,
And have not love,
I am nothing.*

Parties Are Given For Debutantes

Misses Helen McDuffie and Margaret Winship, two popular members of the Debutante Club, were honored yesterday at the buffet luncheon given by Mrs. Alex Smith, who entertained at her home on Tuxedo road.

Bronze flowers were arranged in the library and pink and blue were used in the living room. An antique compote graced the center of the luncheon table and was filled with swansons.

Invited were the members of the Debutante Club and Mesdames Phillips McDuffie, Henry Madox, Elizabeth Winship, Charles Winship, Joe Winship, Charles Hopkins, Victor Smith, Harvey Hill Jr., Tom Clarke and Miss Nell Winship.

Last evening Miss Jean Pentecost, another popular debutante, was honored at a buffet supper given by Mrs. William B. Dunn, who entertained at her home on Stovall Boulevard.

The lovely honor guest served as the flower girl when the hostess, as Miss Dorothy Kirk, became a bride 15 years ago at the Biltmore hotel. Miniature flower girl baskets formed the decorative motif for last evening's affair. Throughout the house were large baskets filled with flowers and centering the dining room table was a silver basket filled with pastel flowers.

Assisting in entertaining were Mrs. Mark Pentecost, mother of the honor guest, and Mrs. E. R. Kirk, mother of the hostess.

Present were Misses Mary Jo Browne and her guest, Miss Gloria Major, of Monroe, La.; Helen Randall, Jeannette Estes, Helen McDuffie, Anne Garrett, Gladys Randall and Emmelyn Carter, and their escorts.

Ladies' Burns Club.

Splendid Cough Remedy Easily Mixed at Home

It's So Easy! Makes a Big Saving. No Cooking.

To get quick and satisfying relief from coughs due to colds, mix your own remedy at home. Once tried, you'll never be without it in your home, and it's so simple and easy.

First, make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of sugar into 1 cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. A child could do it. No cooking needed. Then get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist. This is a compound containing Norway Pine and palatable guaiacol, in concentrated form, well-known for its prompt action on throat and bronchial membranes. Put the Pinex into a pint bottle, and add your syrup. Thus you make a full pint of really splendid medicine and you get about twice as much for your money. It never spoils, and children love its pleasant taste.

And for quick, blessed relief, it is amazing. You can feel it take hold in a way that means business. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and eases the soreness. Thus it makes breathing easy, and lets you get restful sleep. Just try it, and if not pleased, your money will be refunded.

Popular Belles Will Entertain

Heralding the approach of the Yuletide season are the announcements of many gala affairs which are being planned by members of the social contingent. On New Year's Day a duo of prominent belles, Misses Rannie Geissler and Andy Dumas, will entertain at a cocktail party at the home of Miss Dumas on Howell Mill road.

The affair, which will assemble several hundred friends of the hostesses, will be held from 4 to 6 o'clock.

Mrs. Rudolph Geissler and Mrs. H. S. Dumas will assist their daughters in entertaining.

The home will be artistically decorated with flowers carrying out the holiday motif. Plateaus of colorful holly, rich greenery and myriads of silver leaves will beautify the reception rooms.

Here's Amazing Proved

HYGIENIC PROTECTION

Thousands upon thousands of women have now learned to use a sensational, scientific discovery for hygienic purposes. This boon to womankind is not a poison, yet actually kills germs at contact. It is called Zonite, and its action is amazing when used in a douche. It instantly kills germs and bacteria on contact, yet it is one douche proved safe—will not harm delicate tissues. And Zonite deodorizes—assures cleanliness. Helps keep one fresh, clean and pure. So successful has Zonite been that over 20,000,000 bottles have already been used. Get Zonite from your druggist today. It's surprisingly easy and economical to use. Ideal for feminine hygiene. Follow the simple directions and enjoy proved hygienic protection that you may never have known before.

Girl, 21, Becomes Deputy Sheriff.

Twenty-one-year-old Sally Deale, at Sharon, Pa., has a regulation gold star to back up her claim to the distinction of being the youngest feminine officer of the law in the United States.

Sally, a clerk in the Mercer county sheriff's office for the last two years, reached her majority June 28. Accordingly she went to the county commissioners' office and signed her name on the rolls of qualified voters (as a Republican).

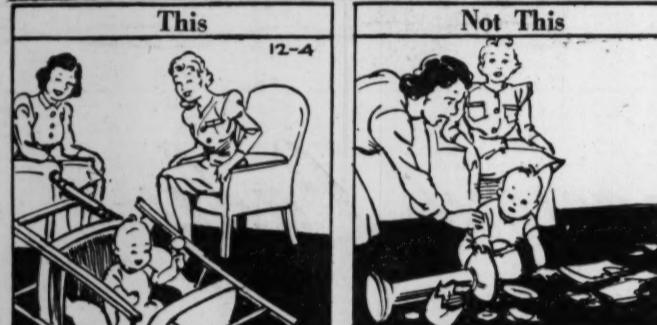

Then she looked up Sheriff Alex Elliott to learn when he was going to make good on an old promise to make her a deputy on her 21st birthday.

The sheriff polished an extra star, administered the oath and placed on the pay roll the name of Deputy Sheriff Sara Belle Deale.

Remember Three Things And Keep Your Chin Lovely

By Ida Jean Kain.

There are three things you can do to keep your chin lovely—to make it lovelier. First of all, and always, hold your head up. Next, use a cream to keep the skin soft. And, third, take just a little daily exercise to keep the tissues firm.

Posture is something you should have to give a thought—but probably you have to. If you slump anywhere along the line, it affects the carriage of your head, which should be held square on your shoulders, with as straight a line as possible at the back of the neck, and a clear-cut right angle where the chin and throat meet.

Cream does not nourish the tissues. It does lubricate the skin and that helps to keep away the lines. And along with the lubrication you get some massage, and that stimulates the circulation, thereby nourishing the tissues. So massage with cream is definitely in order, and knuckle massage is conceded to be the best because it allows for deep pressure without pulling the skin. Here's the way it is done:

Clench the fists and place the first and second joints of the fingers against the skin at the base of the throat. Then working the fingers separately, "walk" up the throat to the chin. Knead deeply under the chin, then, separating the hands, work along the under jawline toward the ears. This should be done with the cream on. Leave it on while you go on to exercise.

Here are three exercises which give returns out of proportion to the few seconds they take:

1—Stretch the neck as high as possible. Then, still stretching up with the throat, tip the head directly sideward and try to touch the ear to one shoulder. Come back to the erect position, stretch again, and try it on the other shoulder. Repeat three times, very slowly.

2—Stretch the neck and tense the throat muscles. Then turn the head slowly to one side, tip the chin high in air, and circle the head around to the other side. Circle the head back to center and rest, then repeat.

With throat exercises, it is necessary to relax the muscles slowly—and also to rest between exercises. Otherwise you'll get dizzy! Begin an exercise by tensing the muscles, end it each time by letting the tension ebb away, then relaxing for a second.

Here is a final exercise, and one which is more strenuous: 3—Lie on the back on the bed with the head hanging limply over the side—just let the head dangle, with muscles of throat completely relaxed. Now, very slowly bring the head up until it is in line with the shoulders, chin and throat forming a right angle. Repeat slowly, three times.

When you finish your exercises, remove all trace of the cold cream and splash cold water over the chin and throat, or go over these areas with a piece of ice wrapped in gauze.

Joan Bennett Snubs Husband

She Rushes After Wanger To Apologize

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 3.—Jimmy Stewart is taking lessons in the rhumba. He shakes a mean hip. . . . Charles Boyer and Margaret Sullavan rehearse a passionate love scene for "Back Street." This is quite difficult in view of the fact that each is puffing furiously on a cigarette! . . . Dorothy Lamour invites a reporter to sit next to her on the set. She then produces an apple, opens her mouth to Martha Raye dimensions, bites into the fruit, and buries her head in some reading matter. To do Dotty justice, I don't think she knew she was being rude. . . . Overheard. . . . Claudette Colbert advising someone how to get rid of a cold. She stops herself suddenly and says, "There I go again—practicing without a license!"

Rita Hayworth pays a flying visit to her home studio (Columbia). "How d'ye like working with Jimmy Cagney?" she is asked (in Warner's "Strawberry Blonde"). "Oh, he's swell," says Rita enthusiastically. "How about working with Olivia de Havilland?" she is asked. "Oh, she's all right—I guess," says Rita. P. S. The two girls are not what you might call overflowing with friendship for each other.

Joan Bennett is walking down a street in the United Artist studio. A man waves to her. She cuts him dead. "Who was that?" she asks the girl with her. "That was Walter Wanger," she is told. Joan rushes after her husband to apologize and explain that she was not wearing her glasses and so did not recognize him. . . . Mrs. Ronald Colman (Benita Hume) is acting again. She plays Greer Garson's part in "Ways and Means" for the San Francisco version of "Tonight at 8:30." Colman would prefer his wife to refrain absolutely from an acting career—except on local radio. Ronnie, incidentally, has to date given $250,000 to the British relief fund.

Deanna Durbin saunters down the crowded Hollywood boulevard, stops at a shop selling sweaters, with a "sale" sign on the window, goes in, pays a dollar, and comes out with her bargain. "And no one recognized me," she tells me. This incident happened a year ago. Her disguise was a hat over one eye and sophisticated grown-up clothes. "At that time they thought of me as a kid," says Deanna. "And even if they had thought I looked like Deanna Durbin, they'd have said, 'it can't be!'" Deanna will do her Christmas shopping at home this year.

Barbara Stanwyck and Robert Taylor are trying to attend a preview. They are stopped by Photographer Hymie Fink, who says, "Come on, Barbara, let me see your face." She obediently turns it to the camera. Then the fans rush for her autograph, neglecting Mr. Taylor. This is quite a reversal of former times when Barbara was pushed roughly to one side while the autographists besieged Bob.

MY DAY: A Plane Trip To Texas

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

ABILENE, Texas, Monday.—The first part of our flight yesterday from Washington, D. C., to Abilene, Texas, was over the clouds and it seemed as though we might run into bad weather and snow. A little rain fell before we landed in Nashville, Tenn., and we did not land at all in Knoxville. I am always sorry for the passengers whose stops are left out, because it must be disconcerting to figure how to return to the place you expected to be in much earlier in the day.

Once out of Nashville, the sky cleared gradually until we could feel that we were approaching the south. By the time we reached Abilene, it was no longer cold.

We made up the time we lost earlier in the day through a delay in leaving Washington because of strong headwinds, so that we reached the hotel in Abilene before 7 p. m. The first and only request was that I see the press. This did not take up much time, however, and we were soon able to have dinner and retire early.

I found myself really sleepy. Even though I was deeply interested in a book which I had been reading on and off all day, I had to turn out my light somewhere around 10:30. After all, I was 11:30 by Washington time and I have been up since before 7 this morning.

I finished the book early today. It is Harold J. Laski's "Where Do We Go From Here?" Anyone reading it will recognize that it is easier for an Englishman to write it, because it is more important for an Englishman to have the answer immediately. When you fight for existence, you must consider everything which will give strength and unity to those who make the fight. Having conceded that, however, I still think it is an important book for us in America to read.

The complexities of modern civilization make it no longer possible to simplify our beliefs and actions as we could in our Revolutionary days. Much that was never dreamed of then now faces us at home and abroad. It is easy to say that the fundamentals remain the same. They do, but the answers are vastly different. We know that the questions presented in this book have to be met by us as well as by all the other democracies in the world, and yet we run away even from the discussion of the problems involved.

There is one quotation from a page toward the end of the book which I should like all our people to remember: "Fear is the child of privilege; it is endemic in every society where men possess its benefits by the prescription of ancient evil instead of justice of an equal interest. To abolish fear, therefore, we need to abolish privilege. We can do it by the voluntary perception of its dangers, or we can do it by the compulsion of violence."

The Teen-Age Must Give Thought to Their Etiquette

A girl who doesn't know her p's and q's on dates! As she hesitates over which place to take in the restaurant booth, how she embarrasses the other members of the foursome. They make a mental note to ask another girl next time.

When playing the role of a sophisticated young lady on parties and dates, you haven't time to wonder about etiquette.

You have got to know the right answer in the twinkling of an eye.

But that's not so hard to do, if you check up on etiquette. If you're one of a foursome entering a restaurant booth, you just remember that it's correct for the girls to sit next to the wall, facing each other, and you take your place without a flicker of hesitation.

Merle Oberon has to watch the distribution of her weight. Her hips are her Achilles heel—if you get what I mean! . . . Sylvia Sidney is furious at losing the lead in "Fiesta in Manhattan" and swears that this time she really is through with Hollywood.

Grapefruit Has Many Possibilities

By Sally Saver.

One of the nicest things about the winter months is that they bring an abundance of the health-giving citrus fruits: oranges, lemons and grapefruit. Zestful and appetizing, these fruits offer almost unlimited possibilities for bringing new interest and appeal into menus. Take, for example, the grapefruit. It may open the meal, served as a juice cocktail, in halves with a spoonful of mint jelly in the center or sprinkled with a snow of powdered sugar. It bobs up in a fruit cup, or in a delicious ice cream. Broiled grapefruit slices, seasoned with chili sauce, make an unusual and delightful accompaniment for broiled fish, baked fish or chops.

For a refreshing and colorful light dessert fine for pre-dinner meals, try a mint grapefruit ice.

1 teaspoon unflavored gelatin.

2 1/4 cups grapefruit juice.

1-2 cup water.

Peppermint flavoring.

Soften the gelatin in one-fourth cup of grapefruit juice. Combine water and sugar, stir over low fire until sugar is dissolved. Add softened gelatin; stir until dissolved. Combine with grapefruit juice. Add a few drops of mint flavoring and green vegetable coloring to make a holly green. Pour into tray of automatic refrigerator and freeze or freeze in a hand freezer. Serve piled into grapefruit shells.

A particular festive and distinctive idea is to serve grapefruit with seeds and cores removed with a teaspoon of sherry in the center. Sherry gives distinctive flavor to grapefruit.

A Trim Button-Front House Dress

By Lillian Mae.

Your at-home clothes receive longer and harder wear and more frequent tubbings than any others in your wardrobe. That's why Pattern 4624 by Lillian Mae fits into the housekeeping picture so well!

First of all, it buttons all down the front—a feature that's not only becoming but wonderfully convenient for wearing and laundering.

Attractive details are the waist darting, the shoulder yokes and the front skirt panels—cut in a single piece with the bodice. Those novelty pockets are optional—have two on the skirt or one on the skirt, with another smaller one on the bodice. The youthful collar may be in self fabric or crisp contrast; the sleeves are long or short. Ric-rac gives a merry finish to this frock.

Pattern 4624 is available in misses' and women's sizes 16, 18, 20, 24, 3

Great Fraternity

The fraternal spirit of baseball is best expressed by a typical old-timer, Jack Farmer, of Rayville, La. Farmer played the outfield for Portland, Pittsburgh and Cleveland.

He has been retired since 1931.

Early Sunday the first man in the Ansley lobby was Jack Farmer, who came to the convention from his Louisiana home for only one reason.

He expressed the reason on meeting Charles Graham, president of the San Francisco Seals. He had known Mr. Graham years before in the Coast league.

"I just had to come back and see the old-timers," said Jack Farmer.

"You know, we haven't got many more years, and it's great to see all the old boys once more."

Well, that is typical of the spirit of baseball. All of us, from time to time, speak of youth being the backbone and life-blood of the great national pastime, but I don't know what the game would do without the real old-timers.

Just think of what contributions men like Connie Mack, Bill McKechnie, Bob Quinn, Clark Griffith, Eddie Collins, Ed Barrow, Harry Grabiner, Charles (Boots) Weber, Frank Shaughnessy, Will Harridge and Branch Rickey have made to the game.

There is no sports fraternity quite like the baseball fraternity. Nowhere else do you see men greet each other with such genuine fondness and admiration.

I think this may best be expressed by an incident which transpired during the Kiwanis luncheon which was attended by a couple of the game's really outstanding managers—Mr. Mack and Bill McKechnie.

High Praise Deacon Bill McKechnie as he stood at the microphone and paid personal tribute to Connie Mack, the grand old man of the game. Mr. Mack is 78 years of age and remains most active as manager of the Athletics.

Bill McKechnie lauded Mr. Mack as "the grandest figure the game has ever known."

Mr. Mack spoke with utmost sincerity when he referred to the contributions made to the game by Bill McKechnie and of his managerial ability as pilot of the world champion Reds.

Baseball leaders are above selfish things. They believe in giving credit where credit is due. Mr. Mack meant it sincerely when he said the victory for the National League over the American League—and he's an American Leaguer—in the World Series was a great thing for baseball.

"The Yankees dominated the American League for four years and it was not a healthy situation," said Mr. Mack.

"I might add," said Deacon Bill McKechnie, "that the Yankees not only dominated the American League, but they ruled the National League as well."

Joe Engel really added the comedy, as ever. Joe pointed out to Kiwanians that they were highly honored.

"You have great champions such as Mr. Mack and Mr. McKechnie, and you also have me. I am pleased to note you have such a large crowd, but that is nothing new to me. I pack 'em in wherever I go."

The convention pepped up with the arrival of the Bush League Barnum.

Likes Atlanta Mr. Mack pointed out that the Athletics, having always been most friendly to Atlanta, trained here in 1910. "We won not only the American League pennant but the World Series as well that year.

"Later on in 1919, we were most friendly with Mr. Charley Frank. You may recall we sent Chick Galloway to play short and Jimmy Dykes to play second. It was a great combination."

Someone asked Mr. Mack why the A's didn't come back to Atlanta to train again.

"Well, the climate has changed somewhat since 1910 and we have to go farther south," he responded.

Joe Engel added—

Texas Aggie Stars Agree To Play at Montgomery on December 28.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Dec. 3.—(P)—All-American J. C. Kimbrough and three other Texas A. & M. stars accepted invitations tonight to compete in Montgomery's third annual North-South football classic December 28, it was announced by the Blue and Gray Association, following a decision by the Aggies to reject all bowl bids.

Others which the association said accepted bids are: Jim Thomason, blocking back; Marshall Robnett, guard, and Vaughn, center.

Immediately following the telephone acceptances and the decision of the Aggies not to compete in a bowl game, an invitation was wired Coach Homer Norton to attend the encounter here as a guest of the Blue and Gray Association.

Earlier, three other luminaries, one from the south end, two from the upper side of the Mason-Dixon line were signed.

Acceptances were announced from Ed Ruckinski, end, of Indiana; Bill Murphy, back, of Cornell, and Dave (Rodeo) Parker, end, of Hardin-Simmons.

Ruckinski was signed by Lynn Waldorf, of Northwestern, and Murphy by Carl Snavely, of Cornell. These coaches will handle the north for the third consecutive time.

Doc Prothro Says He Will Return as Philly Manager

Genial Doctor 'Would Like To Say Philadelphia Will Finish Out of Cellar.'

By JACK TROY.

James Thompson (Doc) Prothro, who insists it isn't like pulling teeth to manage the perennial tail-end Phillies, breezed into the minor league convention yesterday with his perennial confidence of doing something about finishing somewhere higher than eighth place in the 1941 season.

The former dentist and manager of Little Rock observed that he had, before selling Kirby Higbie, two pitchers who could match any National League pair, including Derringer and Walters, of the Reds.

"I'd put Higbie and Hugh Mulcahy up against 'em," said the Doc. "In fact, the Doc did put them up against Derringer and Walters, but what the Reds had otherwise was a ball club. Doc Prothro was somewhat handicapped in this respect.

Doc revealed everything was set as far as next season is concerned. "I will return as manager of the Phillies," Doc said, "and I would like to say we'll finish out of the cellar. But I don't know. It's a tough league and we can't have Higbie."

Doc may be snarling just a bit. He admitted that things are shaping up a lot better and that the Phillies now have something they were a great deal without for some time, which is money.

It always helps, in trying to fashion a winning ball club, to have some funds with which to purchase talent. You rarely get good baseball players on the installment plan.

Southern League pals are cheering for Doc Prothro to pull the Phillies out of last place. They reason that as a former dentist he is going to be able to do it sooner or later.

Terry Denies Hartnett Deal; Landis Arrives

Ostermueller and Galehouse Sold to St. Louis Club.

By JUDSON BAILEY.

Associated Press Sports Writer. Representatives of 16 (count 'em) major league clubs denied everything Tuesday as baseball men milled through the lobbies of downtown hotels on the eve of the 39th annual convention of the minor leagues.

There unquestionably was a lot of trade talk as this manager an that president went into a huddle in some remote corner, but every time they were asked about possible deals they put up an inno-cent front.

As a result there were only two transactions of major league char-acter. Announced today was the sale of Infielder Stu Martin of the St. Louis Cardinals to the Pittsburgh Pirates for cash. Manager Frankie Frisch said Martin would be used principally for utility.

The second deal, made last night, saw the St. Louis Browns purchase two pitchers, Dennis Galehouse and Fritz Ostermueller from the Boston Red Sox in straight cash transaction.

Ostermueller is a southpaw and Galehouse is a righthander.

Neither had good years last season. Galehouse won six and lost six and Ostermueller won five and lost seven.

However, both are experience-pitchers and Donald Barnes, president of the Browns who announced the deal, said he thought his club was strengthened by the purchase.

Although the price was not announced, it was estimated that the two players cost a total of about $30,000.

HARTNETT HITCH.

It turned out, for instance, that some matters still had to be settled before Leo (Gabby) Hartnett could be signed as coach for the New York Giants. President Horace Stoneham of the Giants announced last night the ex-manager of the Chicago Cubs was coming to his club as player-coach, but it turned out he thought Hartnett had agreed to terms with the Giants.

Gabe Murphy, graduate manager of athletics at the Washington (D. C.) school, telephoned Georgetown's acceptance to Charles F. Baldwin, Orange Bowl president.

The selection of Georgetown as Mississippi State's opponent kept intact the Orange Bowl's unbroken policy of making it a "north-south" football game.

Only one point separated Georgetown from an unbeaten season.

Texas Aggies, reportedly sought by the Orange Bowl, reportedly yesterday they would not play a post-season game.

A Story of the American White-Collar Girl

INSTALLMENT III.

That would start an argument, which I didn't understand at the time but I can see it now. Mother was sore, I don't blame her, the old man always had a job at night and got his rest in the daytime. Nellie was a mean little scut, she poisoned a lot of my ideas as a kid. I sometimes figure, if I had a child of my own could I work it so she wouldn't get tainted with all that trivial dirt? I guess it can't be helped. So many females are dirty-minded by nature, and they dirty each other. They get clean if they have the good luck to meet a man who's really sensible and sweet. The funny thing is, Wyn said it was the other way round.

I think of Nellie sometimes, her thin pale face full of slyness and tattletale. She had green eyes and hair all stringy and sticky with jam hooked from the pantry. I haven't seen her for years but I bet things have been tough for her, and I can't say I care.

So Mother and Pop would get squawking, and it seemed to do the old man good; warmed up his blood maybe and softened those crusty joints. He'd forget about Conshohocken and come out with a real Judas priest and heave himself up out of the chair before he knew it.

"We didn't do so bad, did we?" he shouts. "Three fine boys and this little naggin for a chaser? I guess she just got in before stumps were drawn."

I don't think Mother understood all his technical terms from cricket. But I don't know; mothers usually understand more than they let on.

He hobbled to the end of the yard and squats down to weed the flower-bed. After a while I join him there, thinking maybe I'll hear something more that's interesting. I thought, was wearing a whole lot of white satin and lace and having a cake with doves in frosting all around it like what I saw in Hanscom's window on Franklin Avenue, while the men got plastered in the kitchen.

Even after Mother died Pop made pathetic attempts to keep the Front Room special. He went in there sometimes to sit in the red velvet easy chair but I don't think he was ever quite easy. It didn't seem right to sit there in shirtsleeves.

After a fight I always hung round first one and then the other, because they'd come out with surprising remarks. That's a delight to kids, who are smart enough to see that parents are most of the time putting on an act and only come through with the real dope when they're sore.

"It all comes under the head of amusement," he would say. "Gee, laughs, Kitty, get laughs. You'll need all you can collect."

He never got tired telling me how he gave the boys their first cricket lessons on the grass patch in the yard. Even when he was half crippled he still moved and waded the old battle crease where the wicket stood. "That's where I taught Dennis to step out to it," he said. Dennis, he seems more like an uncle than a brother; he's 21 years older than me, was raised in the last great age of Philadelphia cricket. Pop never forgot that Denny once played for the Gentlemen of Philadelphia against some English club that was touring. I think he was really a ringer. Pop said one of the Gentlemen came down with the gripe, and Denny took his place. But as the son of a pro I should think he was really dis-qualified? All that cricket stuff is very dim in my mind now, but it was important.

I suppose Philly is the last place in America where it still matters to be a gentleman. Of course the old man wasn't, but he was on intimate terms with gentlemen on account of cricket. At the clubs, and at the big private school where he was coach, he knew all the Rittenhouse Square crowd when they were just boys. He was invited to cricket club dinners and used to sing Irish songs in 1930. (Mac was the only one of the family left in Philly.) The front room was hardest, somehow, because it had never really been lived in. The stuff hadn't suffered the way everything else had. Some of it we shipped off to the other boys. Denny got the Centennial clock because he was the oldest, but I hope he doesn't keep his appointments by it. Most of the things went out as junk. No one but me was interested in the toy snowstorm. That was the glass ball that stood on a bracket ever since I remember. It was full of clear water and a figure inside, a little girl on a sled coasting down a hillside with a red scarf flying round her neck and a castle in the background. When you shook the ball she was surrounded by a whirling blizzard, then gradually it would settle down and was clear and peaceful. I took that with me and have it yet. The castle came to mean Wyn and the Main Line, and I say "Hello, little girl on a sleigh ride." So in a dumb way it reminds me of myself—not that I need much reminding.

It reminds me of something else, too, if I let it. The day of mother's funeral it was snowing. The front room never quite got over the funeral. I sneaked in there by myself when she was in the coffin. Everything smelled terribly sweet and dead. I had to give the glass ball a shake to reassure myself. But if anybody in the family would be dead I was at the right age to take it, I was going on ten. With all my sorrow and surprise I was in a way proud, too. I was figuring out the solemn way I would return to school and impress the other children. Then a dreadful thing happened. I was standing in the corner holding the snowstorm, in behind the lace curtains, and I guess the undertaker didn't see me. He tiptoed in to see that everything was all right. A speck of soot had settled on poor mother's nose and of course that disturbed him. He took out a big white handkerchief beautifully folded; then I suppose it seemed a pity to spoil its creases. A property handkerchief most likely, used again and again. He bent solemnly over the coffin, gave a quiet puff of breath and blew the smut away.

There was something pretty grim about that, the idea of this stranger blowing in Mother's face and her not being able to resent it; not even caring. I burst into hysterical tears of anger and fright and he was very much shocked that I had seen him.

Aunt Hattie and Uncle Elmer arrived just then from Manitowoc and found me in a spasm of weeping, which I dare say they thought quite proper. I couldn't possibly have told anyone why I was crying. I could see the undertaker looking kind of worried for fear I would, and embarrass him.

Life's a lot different from what people pretend. That's why pretending is fun. I used to think it was some special wickedness of my own that made such queer things happen. Now I'm beginning to guess that everybody's like that. Wyn told me some of the weird things that happened in his family, which you would certainly never suspect from reading the respectful items about them in the Public Ledger. You see a lot in the papers about the man's point of view and the woman's, etc., as if they were never the same. That's just a gag to keep women from being a nuisance, or getting too many of the good jobs. They're not really so different.

What today means to you if you were born between:

March 21st and April 19th (ARIES)—

The entire day favors practically all lines of endeavor. Be active and energetic in promoting all matters. The afternoon hours are more favorable than previous to 1:27 p.m.

April 20th and May 19th (TAURUS)—

You may not find it easy to come to agreements previous to 1:09 p.m., so care should be given to travel, business and daily living. After 1:09 p.m. favors private affairs, communications and things that have been hard to complete.

May 21st and June 20th (GEMINI)—

The period previous to 1 p.m. favors matters of ordinary importance along domestic, business and personal lines. After 1 p.m. does not appear to favor new or important undertakings.

June 21st and July 22nd (CANCER)—

During the entire day and until 5:07 p.m. financial efforts and actual finances may be wasted if you give in to a feeling of too lavish spending. After 5:07 p.m. take special care of health.

July 23rd and Aug. 22nd (LEO)—

Plan to seek favors or go after things you have wanted for a long time, but stay away from highly seasoned foods.

Aug. 23rd and Sept. 22nd (VIRGO)—

This should be a favorable day for grasping opportunities and making advances. Your efficiency should be increased.

Sept. 23rd and Oct. 22nd (LIBRA)—

Previous to 1:15 p.m. favors contacting influential people. The evening hours favor pleasures, friendships, art, music.

Oct. 23rd and Nov. 21st (SCORPIO)—

Between 8:02 a.m. and 6:42 p.m. favors talking finances, dealings with friends and acquaintances, for advancing personal interests and for work of a humanitarian nature. After 6:42 p.m. avoid haste and unpreparedness, vague schemes and do not insist on promises.

Nov. 22nd and Dec. 21st (SAGITTARIUS)—

Previous to 11:48 p.m. is the better portion of the day when you should make every effort to get conditions set in motion for progress. After 11:48 p.m. and until 6:50 p.m. care should be used to hold your poise and be careful in taking on new obligations.

Dec. 22nd and Jan. 19th (CAPRICORN)—

Before 2:52 p.m. favors laying out plans, drawing up specifications and contracts, and for all matters where a clear brain is needed. After 2:52 p.m. favors matters that have to do with adornment and artistic ideas.

Jan. 20th and Feb. 18th (AQUARIUS)—

The morning hours and until 11:15 a.m. favors important plans, dealings with people in authority, buying and selling. After 11:15 a.m. favors creative effort along the lines of music, art, literature.

Feb. 19th and March 18th (PISCES)—

The morning hours and until 6:38 p.m. use care in dealing with older people. Pay attention to finances and avoid undue chances where money is concerned. The evening hours favor pleasures, friendships, art, music.
